Robin Brown Communications Associate

Robin Brown has been a fixture at YMWIC since 2019, working mostly behind the scenes. She has brought many skills and talents to the Foundation in her position as Communications Associate, assisting with processing Scholar Applications and Personal Statement Forms, overseeing production of the monthly Newsletter, researching, testing and helping to implement software and systems, designing flyers, taking photographs and reporting for the Newsletter at events, and more.

When asked why she enjoys working with YMWIC, Robin's response was, "I get a sense of pride when I witness the Scholars excel and succeed." "I have been here long enough to see some Scholars grow up and graduate from the Program, and I feel like a proud mama."

A creative individual and quick learner, Robin's career has included jobs such as Graphic Designer, Adjunct Professor, and Apple Products Sales Associate and End-User Trainer and has included Exhibit Designer at the Philadelphia Museum of Art. She also has a freelance graphic design business.

A mother of one daughter, Robin enjoys creative endeavors such as sewing, experimenting with painting, and making one-of-a-kind jewelry pieces. She also enjoys finding interesting recipes to cook or bake online, reading, keeping up with new developments with Apple products, and growing succulents. A fun fact about Robin is that she once sang on New York's world-famous Apollo Theater stage as a member of a gospel music group.
