

Community Service

West Chester Chapter

The West Chester Chapter participated in the Kind Rocks Project for their second Community Service project. Scholars and parents came together for some painting fun. First, the families participated in a discussion on kindness: What is Kindness, How to be Kind to Others, and What Can be Done When Someone is Not Being Kind. Parents made suggestions on how they can be kind to their Scholars, and Scholars gave ideas on how they can be kind to their parents. Following the discussion, everyone painted inspiring and encouraging messages on rocks. Finally, a small group of Scholars was invited to deliver those rocks to the residents at the Mary Taylor House in West Chester. The Scholars spread the rocks throughout the common areas of this senior living community, then spent a few minutes with some of the residents.

William Penn Chapter

William Penn Scholars helped to spread positive messages and some history by decorating the bulletin boards at Penn Wood Middle School. Scholars decorated one board for Black History Month and one for Women's History Month. Scholars researched and wrote quotes from famous people in history and added to the boards, along with the preprinted items they had been given. Principal Warren Danenza was very appreciative of our Scholars' efforts to beautify the school by adding age-appropriate and grade-level information about Black History and Women's History Month.
