Typing Skills (June 4-8, 11-15, 18-22, 25-29 M-TH one week 4 options afternoon) $150 In this age of technology, computer skills are essential both in academia and industry. This one-week course is designed to give an introduction to touch typing and word processing. We will also go over basic MLA formatting, which is the standard format for papers at Great Hearts Academies.

Film Appreciation (June 4-28 M-Th morning) $250 present students with a survey of formative films in the history of cinema. The four weeks will be divided by theme: 1) origins and silent era; 2) Western classics; 3) international masterpieces; 4) the space age. We will meet four times a week. Three days will be spent watching films. The fourth is optional and will include a brief seminar on the film, and very small excerpts from famous critics and the directors they will be enjoying. At the end of the course, as a final project, students will be allowed to either create a small film, or they can write an informal essay. Here are the list of films:

Week 1: Man with the Movie Camera; City Lights; other short features

Week 2: The Searchers; The Man who Shot Liberty Valence; Good, Bad, and the Ugly

Week 3: Seventh Seal; Yojimbo; 400 Blows

Week 4: Metropolis; 2001: Space Odyssey; Solaris

Creative Writing (June 4-28 M-Th afternoon) $250 The Creative Writing summer course will introduce students to the essentials of story-building. As students complete assignments, they will be compiled into a book of collected works and personal portfolios. Upon arriving every day, students will be assigned a warm-up exercise. Students will then receive a lesson for the day that will be modeled for them. The second half of class will be dedicated to practicing the lesson of the day. The last portion of class will be open-mic sessions.

Mondays will be dedicated to a lesson in the elements of storytelling. Tuesdays will be genre-based lesson. Wednesdays will be an author-based lesson. (This entails that we will read a short piece by an author with a distinctive style. We will discuss as a group what we observe. The second half will be an imitation of the author in question. The authors listed below are subject to change.) Thursdays will be dedicated to learning about different forms of writing.
