

ORANGE MADE exists to CHALLENGE and INSPIRE the architecture of the Rio Grande Valley. We are seeking a design-oriented and technically robust project architect who is driven by all phases of a project and knows that the design process continues beyond the concept.

For this role, we are seeking a self-starting, enthusiastic individual with the desire to be in a creative and collaborative office creating great work. Ideal team member must thrive in a self-directed environment, have sound judgement, and an overactive attention to detail. In this role they will simultaneously manage multiple projects, of various scales, so the ability to stay organized and manage time efficiently is crucial. Come grow your career with us.

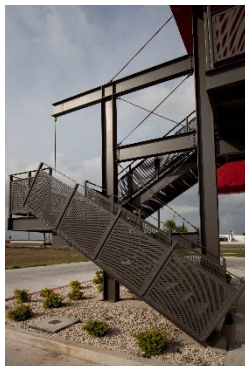

As a project architect, you will be part of a dynamic and evolving team. Putting your experience into action, you will work with office leadership and supporting junior staff to conceptualize and execute architectural designs, participating in all phases of the project but taking on the lead in design development, construction documentation and construction administration phases. Acting as a leader to the full project and consultant teams' coordination, you are responsible for verifying that the design intent and project are realized in a feasible, high-quality, constructible end-result.

Reach out and tell us you're interested - apply, email, give us a shout. Don't worry about bringing your best suit, just bring your best work and let's get to know you. If you are nervous or not sure you have all the qualifications, contact us anyway. We have no filters, and we won't filter you either, by keyword or otherwise. Give us a chance to see if you're the one!

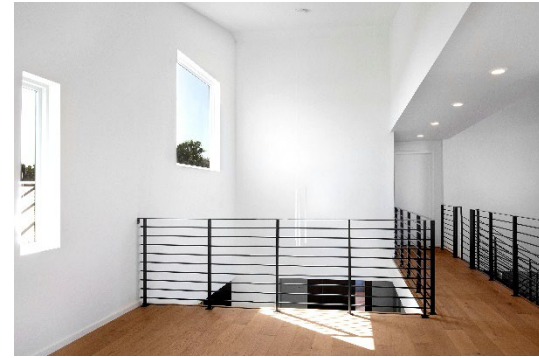

Salary + Benefits will be commensurate with experience and qualifications.
