Biographical Information

Catherine Glenn Foster is President and CEO of Americans United for Life, founded in 1971 as America's premier pro-life legal team. Foster has litigated precedent-setting constitutional questions, abortion and maternal health law and regulations, False Claims Act healthcare and Medicaid fraud, assisted suicide and denial of medical care, First Amendment rights, Freedom of Information Act issues, and healthcare and corporate conscience protections, and has testified before and advised federal, state, and international bodies and representatives. Previously, Foster was Litigation Counsel for Alliance Defending Freedom and Executive Director of Euthanasia Prevention Coalition USA. Foster serves on the boards of And Then There Were None, Christian Legal Society D.C. Metro Chapter, and Rockville Women's Center, and on the advisory board of the Center for Bioethics and Human Dignity. She earned her J.D. at Georgetown University Law Center, M.A. in French from the University of South Florida, and B.A. in History and French from Berry College.
