

Our Re-Entry Team has met to discuss the latest CDC recommendations and will continue to meet as the situation and recommendations change. We remain cautious and concerned about COVID and its impact on our families, members, and friends. We also want to acknowledge that we have church members that include the elderly, children and others who are at various comfort levels at this point in the pandemic. Some are ready to move on completely. Others are still being vigilant. We want to create an atmosphere that is perfect for everyone, however, we know that that is impossible. Knowing that all of us want to do the right and loving thing, this is our expectation: we will continue to strongly recommend and encourage mask-wearing as an act of safety and love, but we will not mandate the mask-wearing. Be advised that with this move, the risk of COVID exposure increases. Please be mindful of others around you. Please be sensitive to those who wish to remain masked. Please continue social-distancing, and frequent handwashing.

I cannot encourage you enough to consider getting vaccinated. I believe that science and vaccines are gifts from God, and they are to be used responsibly as gifts from God to help us live better quality of lives in this world. Please give this your prayerful consideration.

Thank you,

Pastor Byron Brought
