Grantmaking, Donor Development, and Community Involvement

Those new to community foundations quickly learn the three pillars: grantmaking, donor development, and community involvement. Somewhere along the way, these community foundation basics evolve into even greater roles for a community foundation. We are often known as a knowledge base for our donors – providing them with valuable information on which organization is tackling a particular community need. We also are a convener, bringing together not only funders, but community leaders to work together to improve the Ohio Valley in a variety of ways. We show our commitment to the area by continuing to focus on needs that our stakeholders identify as issues that need to be addressed through our grantmaking.

Community foundations are unique in that we are working to improve our community through a network of many donors with many different ideas of what it's going to take to make a difference. Sometimes grants can do a lot of good. Other times, a problem requires a different strategy. We are proud, this year, to have been involved in some projects where all we did was bring people together to solve a community issue. In the pages ahead, you will see examples of this.

The theme to this year's annual report of "Connection, Collaboration, and Commitment" is illustrated throughout this publication showcasing the generosity of special people in our community. We hope that these stories, and these people, will inspire you as much as they have us.

Ziegenfelder Fire INSPIRES Homegrown Collaboration

There are times when a community foundation can be called upon to be part of a solution but may not be a perfect fit to fully make a project to come to life. But that doesn't mean the potential to help goes away. Supporting the community is the right thing to do – and the CFOV team sees that happen through our work every day. The Ohio Valley is known for rallying around those in need – making connections, pulling together and reaffirming commitment when times get tough is simply part of our community's culture.

One of those tough times came on January 31, 2019, when a massive fire struck The Ziegenfelder Company production facility in Wheeling. The company has been producing novelties and frozen pops in Wheeling for over a century, but that stopped on what was incidentally the coldest day of the year. Company leaders, Lisa and Barry Allen, were facing many unknowns when it came to next steps, but quickly drew upon their "people first" culture to get started.

The Ziegenfelder Company seeks to positively impact lives and embraces everyone who plays a role in the business – the tribe (Zieggy-speak for employees), customers and stakeholders. The company demonstrates this in many ways, but perhaps most notably in their commitment to compassionate hiring practices. This intentional practice involves employing those who are struggling with challenges and creating a supportive environment where everyone can succeed.

Naturally, Ziegenfelder leadership was concerned about what this disaster could mean for their tribe. However, they had a plan long before the fire occurred – they just didn't know it.

The company had faced structural and production issues at other plants that resulted in extended stops in production. Realizing the stress of uncertainty and the unwavering investment in their tribe, Ziegenfelder made the intentional choice to pay tribe members as though it was business as usual. That practice carried through to the Wheeling plant. With livelihoods secure, the tribe was ready to move forward.

While this regrouping was taking place, the community was continuing to respond in giant ways, which started before the fire was extinguished. Meals, monetary support, offers of physical space and an incredible amount of genuine concern were ever-present.

Recognizing the loss and challenges that could still occur as a result of such a disaster, community leaders Rabbi Joshua Lief and John Moses quietly set out to create a financial resource to support members of the Zieggy Tribe.

Wanting to best utilize the overwhelming financial support, Lisa contacted CFOV for help executing an employee assistance plan. Through conversations with Foundation leaders and community partners, CFOV facilitated a gathering of organizations better equipped to provide this important resource.

After a few meetings to get things just right, Catholic Charities West Virginia became the provider of the Ziegenfelder Employee Emergency Assistance Program. It remains a comprehensive resource should employees need help at any time. The entire experience left a lasting impression on the Allens and the entire Zieggy Tribe, who note it was overwhelming to be the recipient of such generosity.

While the community foundation played a small role in the eventual outcome, Lisa feels strongly in recognizing the process demonstrated the ability of CFOV to serve as an active connector and integral collaborative partner.

Barry believes there is a silver lining in every situation – you just need to look for it. We agree and remain committed to serving as a connector and collaborative partner for the Ohio Valley "tribe" in times of joy, challenge and everything in between.

Scholarship Recipient CONNECTS with Donor

Brittany Weekley

The Sylvia Archer Scholarship of Sistersville Lions Club was established by Sylvia's son, Elliott. Sylvia's story is one of struggle, intense perseverance and an unending desire to instill the value of education. The fund awards one new scholarship every four years, which provides recipients a renewable means of support. Brittany Weekley, the 2016 recipient, and Elliott have kept in touch over the span of her undergraduate experience and have developed a connection rooted in gratitude.

From Brittany

Thank you so very much for your continued support of my educational endeavors. It has truly been an honor to be the recipient of this award during the time I have been pursuing my undergraduate degree. This amount of encouragement has helped me be able to save enough money throughout this chapter of my education to begin pursuing my graduate degree immediately following my May graduation date. Every penny helps, and to know that I have such kind and generous folks in my corner has enabled me to be able to focus on my education.

My time as an art major at West Virginia University has allowed me to make connections and memories with immeasurable value. I have grown so much as an artist, individual and future educator, and I wouldn't have been able to do what I have without your support and belief in me. I will one day pay forward this immense kindness. Thank you so very much.

Sylvia & Elliott

This is me feeding iron into the furnace!

All geared up for our iron pour

From Elliott

Brittany - the "Sylvia Archer Scholarship" has been awarded since 1983 and I don't remember that I have ever been so proud of a recipient. You have been so gracious and thankful for this small amount of encouragement. My mother, who believed so strongly in education, would be so proud to have known she helped you toward this early goal. She would be even more proud that the Scholarship went to such a fine person as you have demonstrated in your gratitude.

Sylvia, widowed when I was 11 months old, was restricted from receiving an education beyond the eighth grade by her parents. At that time, they felt girls did not need to be educated beyond reading and writing, but as a widow with nine children, she saw the need for education. She insisted that all nine of her children be educated through high school. I am the only one who went on to college, but without any doubt, my ability to fund this Scholarship in my mother's name is a result of my education. I know God will bless you in the years ahead and never let anyone change you from being the wonderful young lady you are today.

CFOV Supports Industry COLLABORATION

A community foundation can "be" many things to the people and places it serves – one of the most common roles of a community foundation is serving as a vehicle to make charitable interests come to life. Over the last several years, the number of energy companies in the area has increased. Those companies feel strongly about making a difference in the communities in which they operate and often look to a community foundation for support as they seek to establish opportunities. CFOV is a proud partner of the energy industry and has had the pleasure of collaborating with several companies with an Ohio Valley presence. Programs ranging from competitive grant opportunities, scholarship funds, community improvement support and more have been made possible through these relationships.

Here's A Look At Collaboration In Action

XTO Commitment to Powhatan Seniors RESULTS in New, Improved Location

Why did you choose to partner with CFOV for this project?

It was very evident to us at XTO that CFOV is a pillar of the community in the Ohio Valley and truly has its finger on the pulse of what is needed. It is very important for XTO to partner with organizations that make a positive difference in the community and CFOV certainly fits that bill.

How do these opportunities support your company's charitable goals?

At XTO, we seek to contribute to projects that truly enhance the quality of life in our communities. Providing Powhatan seniors with a safe and comfortable place to get a warm meal, play games and enjoy each other's company is the perfect way to do that.

An Ordinary Visit Results in an Extraordinary CONNECTION

CFOV connects donors to causes and people to projects, ideas, places and more. And sometimes, a connection is so great it leads to an enhanced partnership with immeasurable benefits.

Such is the case with the Weirton Christian Center and the after-school Anchor Program at Madison Elementary, located in Wheeling. Weirton Christian Center receives annual support through a donor designated fund held at CFOV and the Anchor Program has received support through competitive grant programs and designated funds. These organizations very successfully perform similar work and interact with similar at-risk youth populations, but the coordinators of the programs often felt limited when tackling the inevitable challenges that come when working with school-age children.

It was during a site visit to the Weirton Christian Center when a connection started to form. Site visits to grantee organizations are learning opportunities to see great work in action. Kim Weaver, executive director of Weirton Christian Center, mentioned "social-emotional learning" and how her staff was looking to enhance that piece of their curriculum. What followed was an "a-ha" moment for the CFOV program staff visiting that day. That very concept, social-emotional learning, is a critical component of the Anchor Program. Its coordinator, Mike Kelly, is an ardent supporter of integrating activities that enhance educational, social, emotional and character skills. Connecting these two dedicated professionals, who are involved in the same work, had to happen!

An e-introduction was made and a productive partnership between the organizations quickly evolved. In addition to valuable conversations, the two coordinators have exchanged curriculum ideas and observed each other's programs in action. This connection has flourished in so many ways, truly demonstrating the value of partnership and how a community foundation can be part of making great things happen!

Grants IN ACTION

National Church Residences Transportation Services grew out of their commitment to serving vulnerable populations while promoting health equity. Based in Barnesville, the organization recently opened a Wheeling location in response to a significant increase in the demand for non-emergency medical transportation services. The Women's Giving Circle awarded the nonprofit a $5,000 grant to support their "Paving the Way" program, which provides transportation to oncological appointments at no out-of- pocket cost to uninsured and underinsured women who lack reliable and accessible transportation. This program aims to improve the outcomes related to all facets of cancer care through this needed service.

COMMUNITY BREAD BASKET INC.

Donor Advised Fund SUPPORTS Collaborative Community Efforts

Labelle Neighbors Who Care was founded in 1998 in response to shared quality of life concerns in the Steubenville neighborhood for which the organization is named. Since its founding, organizers have diligently, and successfully, worked to improve the namesake neighborhood and have expanded programming efforts to cover a wide variety of topics. LNWC was awarded a Community Impact Fund grant to support a summer camp program and a college tour experience. Both programs connect at-risk youth to opportunities that will positively influence future choices.

Women's Giving Circle Grant STRENGTHENS Organization's Commitment to Healthcare

The James McCune Foundation Fund is a donor advised fund that supports charitable organizations serving the Weirton area. The Community Bread Basket is just one of the organizations that has benefited from this generous giving tool. Through a network of partner congregations and agencies, the Community Bread Basket defines collaboration as they work to support basic needs for those in Brooke and Hancock counties. The fund's advisors appreciate the flexibility made possible through a donor advised fund and value being able to respond to community needs with financial support.

Community Impact Grant CONNECTS Youth to Valuable Programs

Grants IN ACTION

The James and Betty Kinsey Legacy Fund makes an annual grant to the Cameron Public Library. The Kinseys would be pleased to know their thoughtful generosity and commitment to the place they called home is helping to make a new library building possible. The current library building has issues related to structure and accessibility, which presents challenges to patrons and staff. A new building will allow this important community gathering space to flourish and support the residents of Cameron for many years to come.

Designated Fund Supports COLLABORATIVE Purchase

Stuart and Stephanie Bloch were well known in the community as people who genuinely cared about Wheeling. Many organizations were touched by their time, talent and treasure over the years. When both Stuart and Stephanie passed away in 2017, their four children wanted to continue their parents' philanthropic legacy through a donor advised fund at CFOV. The first two grants of the newly formed Stuart and Stephanie Bloch Memorial Fund were made to the King's Daughters Child Care Center and the Unity Center. Donor advised funds can be a great tool to assist families in making a meaningful difference and connect philanthropy across generations.

Legacy Fund Supports COMMITMENT to Cameron

The Wetzel County Hospital Fund exists to support the hospital and the care being provided through it. Since being established in 2014, the fund has provided nearly $60,000 toward needed equipment. Most recently, support from the fund made the purchase of an AccuVein vein finder possible. This purchase was made in collaboration with a family seeking to honor the memory of a loved one. Designated funds, like the Wetzel County Hospital Fund, can provide an excellent vehicle for organizations of any type to enhance programs and services.

Generational Giving CONNECTS Past to Present

DONOR ADVISED FUNDS

Donor Advised Funds provide a simple, powerful and very personal approach to giving. Donors and advisors stay actively involved in the process and work closely with the Foundation staff to identify community nonprofits doing the best work on the issues they care about most.

CFOV can help you tailor a LEGACY that fits your VISION

Plan Now to GIVE Later.

We can help you create a legacy through philanthropy – include our team in your planning for a fully customized experience that supports and protects your philanthropic intentions.

1

Tell CFOV about your intentions

Communicating your wishes in writing will ensure that we will administer your gift to fulfill your intentions.

2

Include CFOV in your will and estate plan

Your professional advisor can assist in the preparation of important documents that make your wishes clear.

3

Name CFOV as a beneficiary

Name CFOV as a beneficiary of a life insurance policy, an IRA, a retirement plan or consider non-cash gifts like real estate, stocks and appreciated securities.
