

How Do We Walk the Walk? — Discipleship in 2020
Sunday, January 12 at 11:45 am in the Bloom Room

Even if we agree that the world needs to hear the Gospel message, are we ready to proclaim it? How do we prepare ourselves to make what the rector of St. John's of Jackson Hole, WY, Jimmy Bartz, calls a "love-spreading difference"? We wouldn't prepare to run a marathon by walking five blocks twice a week. And we can't be disciples of Jesus without continually trying to commit ourselves to follow Him, day after day, every day. This is what the Episcopal Church is aiming to help us do with the Way of Love initiative: to develop spiritual practices that prepare us to "walk in love as Christ loved us."

Susan Erickson is a candidate for the vocational diaconate, class of 2020. She is a parishioner at St. Philip's at the Hills but is currently doing her 6-month internship at GSP. Susan is a retired lawyer; before she went into law she was a professor of German language and literature. She and her husband Jim Dannenberg spend about five months of the year in Jackson, Wyoming, where she worships at St. John's. Adding the GSP internship to that and St. Philip's, she feels as if she's experiencing the breadth and diversity of the Episcopal Church!*
