Head, Division of Pediatric Cardiology

BC Children's Hospital & University of British Columbia | Vancouver, British Columbia

UBC and BC Children's Hospital are seeking a Division Head to lead the Division of Pediatric Cardiology, a provincial resource providing comprehensive care to critically ill children across British Columbia.

The Division comprises eight full-time members and three regional partners, offering a full spectrum of services, including fetal diagnostic cardiology, catheterization, electrophysiology, heart surgery, and transplantation. With over 5,000 clinic visits, 2,000 outreach visits, and 200 open-heart surgeries annually, the Division is the sole provider of full pediatric cardiology services in BC. It also excels in clinical research, teaching, and interdisciplinary healthcare training.

Key Responsibilities

- Foster a culture of teamwork and collaboration within the Division.
- Provide conflict resolution and navigate a complex, diverse workforce.
- Promote patient safety in a family-centered environment.
- Support the expansion of specialized clinical services and collaborate with the Provincial Health Services Authority to plan services for children and youth across BC.

Qualifications

- Certification or eligibility for the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada examinations in pediatrics or equivalent qualifications.
- Completion of a recognized training program in cardiology.
- Eligibility for a specialist license to practice in British Columbia.
- Academic appointment recommendation to the Department of Pediatrics, UBC at the rank of Clinical Associate Professor or Clinical Professor (commensurate with qualifications and experience).

Qualified candidates should send their CV and the name, title and contact information of 4 referees. Applications will be accepted until a suitable candidate has been found.
