Seattle, Washington

Seattle, Washington

Seattle may be the exception to the rule that you can't please everyone. It's a destination that has it all. Top-quality seafood, beautiful parks and beaches, concert halls, art galleries and museums. It's easy to see why Seattle is considered by many to be a perfect place to visit.

Sitka, Alaska

Sitka is a hidden beauty on the east coast of Baranof Island in southeast Alaska. Towered over by snowy mountains in the distance, it has previously been known as the Indian River Park and Totem Park. A city that appears to have sprung up in the most unlikely of locations, Sitka is one of Alaska's most picturesque port calls.

Glacier Bay, Alaska

With snow-capped peaks, abundant wildlife and shimmering glaciers, it's no wonder Glacier Bay National Park is the crowning jewel of Alaska's Inside Passage. A Glacier Bay National Park cruise reveals some of the planet's most remarkable tidewater glaciers.

Icy Straight Point, Alaska

Icy Strait Point is a grand idea brought to life in a brilliant hub of Alaskan action and adventure. Watch for whales in the picturesque wilderness or enjoy warm hospitality and hearty food ashore. This natively owned cruise port on Chichagof Island offers the best of what makes this region unique; piercing blue waters, emerald green forest and myriad ways to enjoy the outdoors.

Victoria, British Columbia

Nestled on the southern coast of Vancouver Island, British Columbia's capital city, Victoria, is an intoxicating blend of historic streets, Victorian architecture and dramatic craggy coastlines. You'll find a perfect balancing act between old and new, where the legacies left by indigenous populations are imprinted alongside fairy-tale castles and gardens that stay in bloom year-round.
