

Keeping Your New Baby Safe

In the Time of COVID-19

These are difficult times for everyone, especially new parents. Your well-being is as critical as your new baby's. You may have lots of questions and the resources offered here may help answer the following:

- ❖ Why is my baby crying so much?
- ❖ Should I worry that my baby cries for two hours?
- ❖ How will having a new baby change my relationships?
- ❖ What if I need help? Who can I ask for help?
- ❖ What is the safest sleep position and space for my baby?
- ❖ How can I take a break from my baby when there is no one else to help?

NOTE: We are all encouraged to cover our nose and mouth during the COVID-19 crisis, but you should NEVER put a mask on your baby or cover their nose or mouth. It is DANGEROUS! Your baby will not be able to breathe and could suffocate.

Tips for New Parents

(www.aap.org)

Comfort your baby. Crying babies want to be soothed. You may need to try a few things before they calm. Try holding them, feeding them, swaddling them, gently rocking them, and singing to them. Visit www.healthychildren.org/English/ages-stages/baby/diapers-clothing/Pages/Swaddling-Is-it-Safe.aspx.

If these strategies don't work, put the baby down and take a break.

Be sure your baby is in a safe environment. Visit www.healthychildren.org/English/ages-stages/baby/sleep/Pages/A-Parents-Guide-to-Safe-Sleep.aspx.

While some babies cry for a long time, many parents are surprised at how quickly a baby will soothe themselves and go back to sleep. If your baby continues to cry for more than 10 minutes, repeat the comfort techniques above.

Pay attention to your own needs. The challenges of new parents can be overwhelming. Rest as much as you can—try sleeping when the baby does.

Connect with others. Social distancing can be isolating. Try video chats or social media to stay in touch. If you're a friend or relative on the receiving end of these calls, listen first before offering suggestions.
