Are you an accomplished writer, editor, and communications leader ready to help shape public understanding of California's clean energy future? Sonoma Clean Power (SCP) is seeking a Senior Communications and Engagement Manager to lead day-to-day communications, public relations, editorial content, organic social media, and community engagement efforts throughout SCP's service area in Sonoma and Mendocino counties.

About Sonoma Clean Power (SCP)

SCP is not just an electricity provider; we are a catalyst for change. We procure electricity from clean, renewable sources including solar, wind and geothermal. Our commitment to clean energy has made us a leader in the industry, and we've been providing an optional 100% local renewable source since 2014.

Summary Description

The Senior Communications and Engagement Manager leads SCP's communications, public relations, editorial, social media, and community engagement programs. The position develops organizational narratives, directs communications projects and publications, manages external public relations resources, supports community partnerships, and advises on communications strategy, public sentiment, and emerging issues. The successful candidate will be an externally published writer and editor with exceptional research, storytelling, leadership, and relationship-building skills.

Writing Portfolio Requirement

Candidates must submit a professional writing portfolio that includes:

- Multiple substantive, bylined works published by established media, trade, industry, academic, or professionally edited digital outlets.
- Annual reports, research reports, case studies, speeches, executive communications, and technical publications may supplement the portfolio.
- Press releases, social media posts, advertising copy, routine website content, and uncredited organizational materials do not independently satisfy the publication requirement.
