Re: Artificial Intelligence Week – December 8-12, 2025

One of our goals this term has been to spark deeper engagement and richer discussion around the most timely and relevant issues within the House of Representatives. One of the topics that has repeatedly come up in conversations with many of you has been Artificial Intelligence (AI). We all recognize that AI may open new economic vistas. At the same time, we see stories about how AI can be abused, have adverse effects on education, or harm emotionally vulnerable users. As policy makers, our understanding of the issue is complicated by the rapid emergence of this complex technology, and, as we've seen with social media, short-term legislative choices can have serious long-term consequences.

To prepare us to deal with this topic for the upcoming Session, I am designating the final interim committee week (December 8-12) as "Artificial Intelligence Week" in the Florida House of Representatives. I have asked our subcommittee chairs to facilitate discussions on the potentially positive and negative impacts of the use of AI in their respective jurisdictions. These discussions will be additions to, not replacements for, other work that the subcommittees need to complete.

I would encourage all of you to come that week prepared to engage in this important topic, and I hope you emerge at the end of the week with a more fully rounded perspective on what AI means for the future of Florida.
