

Effective Short-Term Mission Trip Planning Workshop

Done well, short-term mission trips build community and reinforce our connections with God's mission in the world. Without good planning and execution, however, we can do more harm than good. This workshop will offer practical tools and written resources for your mission trip leaders to focus and space to learn best practices from one another:

- Going deeper in an understanding of mission Shifting the paradigm of short-term mission from “us helping them” toward a framework of mutuality helps trip leaders engage the congregation in a richer conversation about mission.
- Discerning whether and where to go Deciding on your mission trip destination is a discernment process that can engage your congregation’s mission committee and other groups.
- Elements of a good mission trip experience Setting the groundwork for a meaningful and mutually beneficial mission trip experience is key to an experience that is transformative to all those involved (the trip participants and the hosts).

We welcome workshop leader Ellen Sherby, Coordinator for Equipping for Mission Involvement at the Presbyterian Mission Agency. She works with other staff to provide mission education resources to US Presbyterians and to help churches and mission workers connect with each other through letters and visits. Ellen lived in Nicaragua for 11 years working with short-term mission teams from the U.S. to Mexico, Honduras, and Nicaragua. Nine of those years she was a PC(U.S.A.) mission co-worker with the Council of Evangelical Churches of Nicaragua.

Join us from 12:00—4:00 p.m., with lunch provided
June 15, 2019 at Wauwatosa Presbyterian Church
Register at www.pbymilwaukee.org

Because of generous mission giving by our congregations, the Presbytery can offer this workshop at no cost to participants.

Effective Short-Term Mission Trip Planning Workshop

Done well, short-term mission trips build community and reinforce our connections with God's mission in the world. Without good planning and execution, however, we can do more harm than good. This workshop will offer practical tools and written resources for your mission trip leaders to focus and space to learn best practices from one another:

- Going deeper in an understanding of mission Shifting the paradigm of short-term mission from “us helping them” toward a framework of mutuality helps trip leaders engage the congregation in a richer conversation about mission.
- Discerning whether and where to go Deciding on your mission trip destination is a discernment process that can engage your congregation’s mission committee and other groups.
- Elements of a good mission trip experience Setting the groundwork for a meaningful and mutually beneficial mission trip experience is key to an experience that is transformative to all those involved (the trip participants and the hosts).

We welcome workshop leader Ellen Sherby, Coordinator for Equipping for Mission Involvement at the Presbyterian Mission Agency. She works with other staff to provide mission education resources to US Presbyterians and to help churches and mission workers connect with each other through letters and visits. Ellen lived in Nicaragua for 11 years working with short-term mission teams from the U.S. to Mexico, Honduras, and Nicaragua. Nine of those years she was a PC(U.S.A.) mission co-worker with the Council of Evangelical Churches of Nicaragua.

Join us from 12:00—4:00 p.m., with lunch provided
June 15, 2019 at Wauwatosa Presbyterian Church
Register at www.pbymilwaukee.org

Because of generous mission giving by our congregations, the Presbytery can offer this workshop at no cost to participants.

