St. Olaf Business and Management Studies faculty, Sian Christie, is looking to work with local businesses in two different classes this fall term: Marketing and Organizational Storytelling. For more information about what each course can provide you to help support your work and to submit interest, please review each form below. Completing the interest form does not guarantee you a student group this term; however, these courses run often so there will be more opportunities in the future! Questions can be directed to Sian at christis@stolaf.edu.
