Whole Children and Milestones Recreation NEW

As summer fast approaches, we are brainstorming how to best serve our students. We have made the decision not to run our usual in-person day programs for 3-17 year olds or afternoon classes for adults this summer. But we have other ideas!

The free online classes that we have been offering this spring, which wrap up on June 27, have been a great help to families.

We are considering offering similar classes, through Zoom and Discord, in two 5-week sessions, July 6 - August 8 and August 10 - September 12. Unfortunately it is not sustainable to continue offering the classes for free, so we are considering charging a flat “membership” fee of $100 for each of the two sessions. Once a member, a student can come to as many classes as they want, as well as any additional online events we sponsor, like cooking shows, read-aloud time, and social stories.

In addition, our theater director Matt Meers will be teaching an online theater class on July 9, 16, 23, and 30 with the possibility of July 30 being an in-person event. This class would be offered separately from the membership plan, and cost $40.

We hope to try out one or two additional in-person events/classes in July, and possibly more in August and September. Before finalizing our plans, we wanted to hear your thoughts. Please take five minutes to complete this survey to help our decision making process. For more information email Julie Hooks. Thank you! NEW

Sensory-friendly tips for people who don’t like to wear masks (or take a COVID test if one is necessary)

This article from the Harvard Health Blog addresses the problem of wearing a mask for many people who have sensory issues, and it offers some steps that may help. And National Geographic shows you how to keep your favorite masks clean!

Having a COVID test is also not the most pleasant experience for anyone, and the article includes links to social stories and a video from the New England Journal of Medicine about preparing for a test.
