Engagement for All in Online Learning: Exciting the Learner

Hosted by Brian Green

Engaging students in the learning process increases focus and attention promoting more meaningful learning experiences. However, with remote/hybrid learning, ENGAGEMENT is one of our greatest challenges. In this PD Short, teachers will explore actions to heighten engagement through student collaborative activities. Participants will investigate designs that will make learning more social and active and we will examine teaching strategies to “dissolve the screen”. Educators will leave with a pocketful of ideas, plans, blueprints, and strategies to raise interest and attention. This session is the second in a set of three. Attend one or more in this set about Engagement in Online Learning. Another session in this set scheduled for February 3rd. Register HERE.

Audience: Teachers Grades 3-8
