

Dwight Little is the owner and operator of Little Farms in Newdale, ID. He runs a diversified operation with his son that includes malt barley, hard red spring wheat, potatoes, alfalfa, and black angus cattle. Dwight is the Past President of the Idaho Grain Producers Association and is serving a two-year term as Past President of the National Barley Growers Association. Dwight has been farming since he was a freshman in high school and is proud that Little Farms is still a family-run operation.
