

ASHI VOLUNTEER SPOTLIGHT

Patricia Brannon CHT(ACHI)
Histocompatibility and Immunogenetics Lab,
Emory University Hospital

What committee do you serve on? Technologist Affairs' Committee and Membership Committee

How did you get started as a volunteer for ASHI? I wanted to pay it forward to a society that has served me well for many years.

How has volunteering for ASHI improved your professional development? It has been eye opening to see others in various positions in labs around the US and to see all that ASHI offers to its members.

What is your most memorable volunteer moment? It is amazing to see the brainstorming in committee meetings to offer events and benefits for members. We have many talented people on these committees.

Why do you think it is important for others to volunteer with ASHI? Volunteering is a good way to help the Society and meet others in labs around the country.
