

Q1 Do you allow employees to use office computers to do personal activities (like online shopping or facebook)?

Answered: 20 Skipped: 0

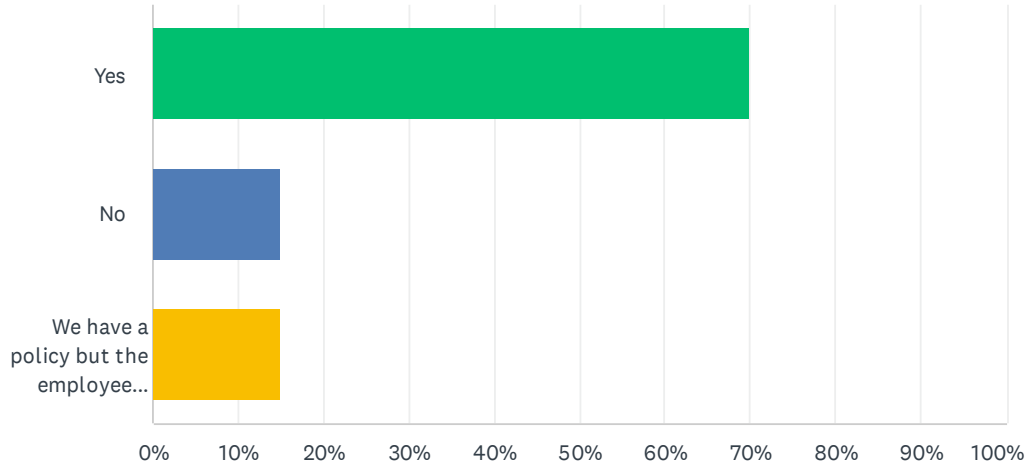

ANSWER CHOICES	RESPONSES
Yes, but only during off the clock breaks	10.00% 2
Yes, can use work computer for personal use	15.00% 3
No, never	75.00% 15
TOTAL	20

#	OTHER COMMENT	DATE
1	But we have not placed strict restrictions, like blocking certain website, we have for sure block gaming websites and other unacceptable websites..	12/15/2025 7:34 AM
2	Not for school or other business purposes, but yes for short bursts during downtime.	12/12/2025 9:52 AM
3	I wish they wouldn't!	12/12/2025 9:27 AM
4	Limited use only	12/12/2025 9:02 AM

Q2 Do you have a policy that clearly states what the employee can/cannot do and is it signed by the employee?

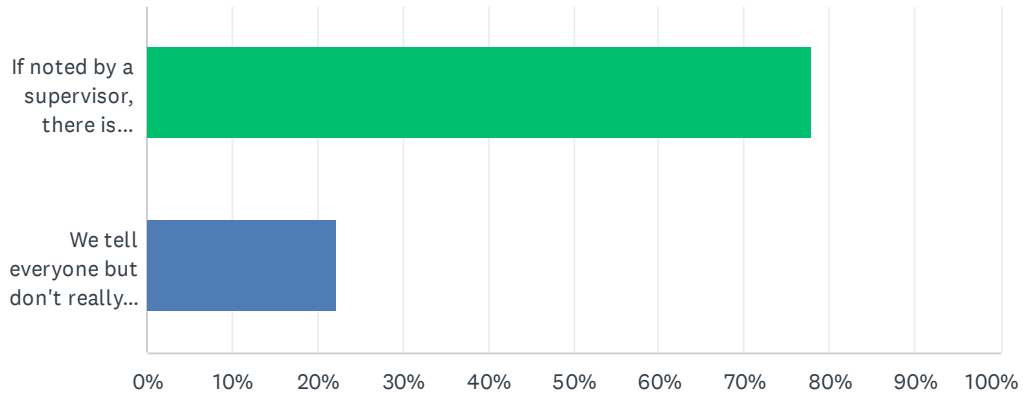

Answered: 20 Skipped: 0

ANSWER CHOICES	RESPONSES
Yes	70.00%	14
No	15.00%	3
We have a policy but the employee doesn't sign it	15.00%	3
TOTAL		20

Q3 How strictly is it enforced?

Answered: 18 Skipped: 2

ANSWER CHOICES	RESPONSES
If noted by a supervisor, there is corrective action	77.78% 14
We tell everyone but don't really enforce it	22.22% 4
TOTAL	18

#	OTHER COMMENT	DATE
1	Enforced, and most respect. If caught by supervisor, it's usually only takes a verbal warning.	12/12/2025 10:33 AM
2	When there is excessive time on phones or surfing, it is stopped. Overall, our team puts their focus on patient care first and peer pressure keeps people honest.	12/12/2025 9:52 AM
3	this is not an issue	12/12/2025 9:49 AM
4	Personal activities should be done on personal devices, but I'm sure staff uses office laptops for this purpose, which puts our network at risk.	12/12/2025 9:27 AM
5	They are instructed NOT to delete history. If they do then trouble ensues.	12/12/2025 9:02 AM
6	We block many of the website categories that we do not want employees using.	12/12/2025 8:56 AM

Q4 How well does your plan and implementation of policy work?

Answered: 14 Skipped: 6

#	RESPONSES	DATE
1	Very well.	12/12/2025 6:14 PM
2	very well - Our IT department has social media and amazon, etc blocked on work computers	12/12/2025 2:32 PM
3	not great, the phones are where we really focus, trying to keep employees from looking at their phones all day.	12/12/2025 1:00 PM
4	So far it works out pretty good., although sometimes I had catch someone on personal stuff during work hours. I do let them know this is not acceptable.	12/12/2025 12:23 PM
5	Fairly well; we've only had a couple of instances of using the office computer for private purposes.	12/12/2025 11:30 AM
6	It has been effective and when we do audits, there are not many instances of personal use. I have reiterated at staff meetings that we have an obligation to secure our technical infrastructure and that personal use of our computers can compromise that.	12/12/2025 10:51 AM
7	We are good with computers, our bigger problem is keeping them off their cell phones with so many 2-factor authentication apps necessary.	12/12/2025 10:35 AM
8	It's in our handbook and the handbook is signed. I will say that I have made it hard for staff to look on sites due to IT restrictions. Most do not have time but if they do, it's usually the phones that are the issue.	12/12/2025 10:33 AM
9	Heavy policing & strict rules typically leads to more attrition. But our staff do know that they will get called out if not performing their job as expected.	12/12/2025 9:52 AM
10	I'd love to find out how other offices are handling this.	12/12/2025 9:27 AM
11	It's not the use of office computers that is the problem, because they just use their cell phones instead.	12/12/2025 9:02 AM
12	We had our IT guy block all the social media sites. Little internet activity here and there to order lunch for example we would tolerate but anything extensive they would get written up for.	12/12/2025 8:49 AM
13	If caught it works well. Hard to monitor. Our IT people are good about helping us confirm if it is brought to our attention.	12/12/2025 8:46 AM
14	Seems to be very good. Our IT monitors it. And we also block alot of websites that we know they would be wanting to use.	12/12/2025 8:38 AM