families. This workshop will highlight the SAG's process and opportunity to lead the District toward this model.

Presenters:

Laura Furr, Owner, Laura Furr Consulting LLC

Melissa Milchman, Grants Management Specialist, Juvenile Justice, Office of Victim Services and Justice Grants

LaShelle Richmond, Youth Empowerment Program Manager, Sasha Bruce YouthWork

C. Behind The Masquerade: A Youth Led Dialogue on Grassstop and Grassroots Organizing to Create Solutions for Dual Status Youth

Residential treatment centers house the largest population of dual status youth in Harris County. Records show state investigators confirmed hundreds of violations at least 250 of them involving abuse, neglect and mistreatment. All of those centers remain in operation today. Our workshop will focus on new and emerging information that we are discovering from youth residing in RTC's, curriculum created to better support system involved youth and elevate their voice, and strategies to engage and activate community members into action to better help support these youth.

Presenters:

Dieter Cantu, Program Manager, Harris County Youth Collective

Charles Batiste, Youth and Community Specialist, Harris County Youth Collective

Annie Anthony, Youth and Community Specialist, Harris County Youth Collective

D. Teen Dating Violence: A Pathway to Domestic Child Sex Trafficking

This session seeks to address one of the underexplored entry points into domestic child sex trafficking (DCST) - through teen dating relationships. DCST involves similar power and control patterns and tactics present in intimate partner violence and dating violence. For justice system professionals, the first step in working with potential DCST victims is to recognize the complexity of their situation, which may include being trafficked by a dating partner.

Presenters:

Jessica Pearce, Senior Site Manager, National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges

Rebekah Tucci, Program Manager, National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges

E. Probation Transformation: A Vision for Getting it Right

Annie E. Casey's 2018 report, Transforming Juvenile Probation: A Vision for Getting it Right, highlighted ways in which jurisdictions can—and are—fundamentally shifting their approach to juvenile probation. The paper was grounded in on-the-ground efforts across the country to move away from a surveillance and compliance focus and toward an orientation in which the primary aim of probation is to promote young people's long-term success. This workshop will take you through that vision from inception, to the components, and implementation.

Probation is the most frequently issued disposition for young people and is most heavily passed down to youth of color. We will discuss how if the system is not careful, probation can be a gateway to the deep end of the system.

Transforming probation is centered around leveling the playing field for youth of color, using probation as a liaison between the system and the community instead of a barrier, and forming relationships that will set up a youth for success within their community. Transforming probation is rooted in two pillars, diversion and refashioning probation, and this workshop will discuss how redesigning those two pillars is essential to transformation. From why this is needed, to what is needed, we will discuss what have been the barriers to using probation as it was originally designed.

Concurrent Workshop Session #2

A. “But We Already Divert a Lot of Youth!”: Revisiting Diversion with an Intentional Focus on Race, Equity, and Inclusion

Overrepresentation of youth of color begins at the earliest stages of the youth justice system and almost always worsens as youth move deeper into the system. To achieve significant reductions in racial and ethnic disparities, we must focus efforts on the front end of the system. Take away practical (and proven!) approaches for using diversion as an intentional strategy for reducing racial and ethnic disparities at the state and local level in this interactive session.

Presenters:

Tiana Davis, Policy Director for Equity and Justice, Center for Children's Law and Policy

Jason Szanyi, Deputy Director, Center for Children's Law and Policy

B. How to Respond to the Opioid Crisis in Your Jurisdiction: Engaging Youth & Families with Lived Experiences

As juvenile and family justice professionals, we develop policies and procedures and make decisions about system improvements. All of which effects the youth and families being served; however, these policies and decisions are often made without the input of people who have to navigate the systems we create. This can be especially true for youth and families impacted by the current opioid crisis. This session will highlight several strategies to engage people with lived experiences.

Presenters:

Wendy Schiller, Senior Site Manager, National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges

Andrew Wachter, Site Manager, National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges

C. The End of Bricks and Mortar: Embracing Therapeutic Foster Care at the Dawn of Family First

If therapeutic foster care (TFC) had a song it would be "I can do anything you (congregate care) can do better." In Kentucky, TFC has been used by the Kentucky Department of Juvenile Justice to deal with some of the most challenging situations. Youth whose issues are more of a mental health nature than delinquency? An alternative to detention placement to serve a rural area with numbers too low to support an emergency shelter? A step-down from residential care for a sixteen year old 6 foot 2 sex offender? TFC to the rescue.

Presenters:

Vicki Reed, Executive Director Kentucky Juvenile Justice Initiative

Rob Goodwin, Chief People Officer, NECCO (TFC Agency)

D. State and Local Leaders: Working with DOJ's Civil Rights Division to Protect the Rights of Justice System-Involved Youth

Through presentation, discussion, and a small group exercise, state and local leaders will develop an understanding of DOJ's juvenile justice civil rights enforcement work. Using case studies, participants will identify and propose remedies for civil rights violations, review DOJ's resolution of these violations, and consider the leadership role that stakeholders can play in achieving lasting reform. The case studies will address juveniles' right to counsel and protection from harm in secure juvenile justice facilities.

Presenters:

Deena Fox, Trial Attorney, United States Department of Justice Civil Rights Division

Richard Goemann, Trial Attorney, United States Department of Justice Civil Rights Division

Winsome Gayle, Special Litigation Counsel , United States Department of Justice Civil Rights Division

E. Building Women: Using Mentor & Civic Engagement to Heal & Empower Girls in the Juvenile Justice Context

The Osborne Association, from its offices in Harlem, Brooklyn, and the Bronx, operates interventions for youth who have incarcerated parents and/or justice system involvement of their own. These programs employ complementary approaches: (1) transformative mentoring and (2) civic engagement. Using exercises, role-plays, and stories, two direct-service staff and a former participant will present strategies for using these approaches to support girls and young women within a justice system chiefly designed for males.

Presenters:

Chantla Stokes, Youth Development Specialist, The Osborne Association
Diana Archer, Children, Youth, & Family Services Coordinator, The Osborne Association
Eileen Kelly, Senior Grant Writer, The Osborne Association

R/ED Coordinators and CJJ Ethnic and Cultural Diversity Committee Joint Business Meeting

All R/ED Coordinators and Ethnic and Cultural Diversity Committee members are invited to attend this joint meeting. It will serve as a forum for those who work on reducing racial and ethnic disparities (RED) to network, share resources, and discuss emerging issues.

The Ethnic and Cultural Diversity Committee ensures that the diversity of race, culture, and ethnicity of youth in the juvenile justice system remains foremost in the minds of CJJ members. Committee members develop juvenile justice system reforms that generate policies and services to resolve R/ED in the juvenile justice system. The committee acts as an advisor to CJJ on all ethnic and cultural issues.

Facilitated by: William Jernigan, National Racial and Ethnic Disparities Coordinator, Coalition for Juvenile Justice
Tracey Wells-Huggins, Ethnic and Cultural Diversity Committee Chair, Coalition for Juvenile Justice

CJJ Government Relations Committee Meeting

This committee reviews federal policy issues and questions related to juvenile justice and delinquency prevention on behalf of CJJ and all of its members. It formulates educational documents, including position papers and policy recommendations, to represent the views of the SAGs and CJJ members. The committee also organizes CJJ's annual Hill Day and other member training opportunities. The committee also serves as a liaison to other national and state organizations working on federal policy.

11:30 am - 12:30 pm	Concurrent Workshop Session #3 A. JJDPA Reauthorization: The Latest on Jail Removal Reforms In 2018, the JJDPA was reauthorized for the first time since 2002. One of the key updates to the law includes a provision on strengthening the jail removal/sight and sound provisions to include youth charged as adults. States have until December 2021 to return youth charged as adults to the custody of juvenile justice systems, except in cases where it is in the "interest of justice". As a follow-up to last year's presentation, learn about the federal law and strategies for local jails to "get to zero" by 2021, how that looks in practice, and what states have taken action since the passage of the updated Act.

Presenters:

Marcy Mistrett, CEO, Campaign for Youth Justice

Melanie Shapiro, Director, Juvenile Justice Policy for Maryland's Office of the Public Defender

B. On Track: How can Juvenile Justice Systems Improve Employment Outcomes for Youth and Young Adults

As juvenile justice systems have moved to raise the age of jurisdiction and transition to an older average population, the needs of youth in the system are shifting. In response, Council of State Governments Justice Center partnered with Council of Juvenile Justice Administrators to conduct a 50 state survey on workforce development services provided to youth in juvenile justice systems. Join us as we dive into the key trends identified from the survey and discuss strategies for improving outcomes.

Presenters:

Jacob Agus-Kleinman, Policy Analyst, Council of State Governments Justice Center

Nina Salomon, Deputy Director, Juvenile Justice Program, Council of State Governments Justice Center

C. Reel Talk - Group Cinematherapy for Adolescent Black Males

Males and African Americans represent two groups that traditionally shy away from counseling as a means of problem solving, therefore it was imperative to develop a method of intervention that is both effective and engaging for this population. Black adolescent males, particularly those living in an urban environment, represent a group that is vulnerable to a high degree of mental health problems. Being that there are few interventions that have been found to be successful with Black males, it was necessary to develop an effective therapeutic tool that can be used in treatment with this population. The literature indicates that both cinematherapy and group therapy are effective separately. Therefore, there is a high likelihood that these interventions would be effective collectively.

Presenter:

Jamaal Scott, Staff Psychologist, North Carolina Department of Juvenile Justice

D. Relational Aggression in Teenage Girls-Quieting the "Mean Girl"

Relational aggression is a type of bullying that focuses more on sociometric status. This type of bullying is challenging for people to understand because of the concealed methods used by its perpetrators and the victim's hesitancy to report or address the issue. Often it is difficult for victims to identify that they are victims. This presentation will help teach methods to help identify victims and lead them to a path of empowerment in their communities.

Concurrent Workshop Session #4

A. Youth Leadership... More than services

This workshop will help you learn about what it means to build youth up that have touched the Behavioral Health System and other cross system services. Learn from an expert who has have incorporated this into the lives of many youth. This youth Leader will share their lived experience in the system and how they were able to use that experience to mentor and promote leadership. She will also talk about the exciting ways Washington State is incorporating youth peer support and youth voice in Behavioral health treatment models, committees, councils and conferences. You will also learn about the exciting changes going on across the State and nationally for youth peer leadership, Washington State is currently building a Statewide youth network to support youth peer support and leadership. These are the leaders that are making it happen. You will be inspired by their stories, their faith, and their dedication to youth leadership. The Youth are our future- let's build them up for it!

Presenter:

Evelyn Clark, Youth Liaison, Washington State Health Care Authority

B. Listen Up! How Creative Partnerships and a Heightened Focus on System Dynamics Are Shaping Teen Pregnancy Prevention for Youth in Juvenile Justice

The Office of Population Affairs (OPA) is increasingly leveraging innovative methods, including systems thinking and youth-centered design, for addressing complex public health issues like STD/STI and pregnancy rate disparities for youth in juvenile justice. This workshop will highlight how OPA has applied such methods to unique partnerships with grantees, including through a Youth Listening Session with Project Ntarupt and a Pop-Up Workshop, and explore how these opportunities have advanced local and federal public health efforts.

Presenters:

Elizabeth Laferriere, Public Health Analyst, Office of Population Affairs, U.S. Department of Health & Human Services

Veronica Ray Whitehead, Director of Programs, North Texas Alliance to Reduce Unintended Pregnancy in Teens

Nicole Bennett, Innovation and Demonstration Team Lead, Office of Population Affairs, U.S. Department of Health & Human Services

C. Unpopular: Ways to Support and Rehabilitate Youth Charged with Violent Offenses

Although only five percent of youth in the system are accused of violent crimes, there is little literature or tangible action plans discussing how best to serve these youth, who are still being sent to outdated and ineffective youth prisons, or even worse, being automatically transferred to the adult system. We hope to make recommendations on how to limit and to restructure secure confinement so it benefits both children and the society to which they will return.

Presenters:

Jessica Kelley, Government Affairs Manager / Criminal Justice, R Street Institute

Marcy Mistrett, CEO, Campaign for Youth Justice

D. Collaboration for Change: How Cincinnati & Connecticut Uniquely Approach Coordinating Juvenile Justice and Homeless Services

Interactions with the juvenile justice system on any level put at youth at greater risk for homelessness. With the additional wisdom of two youth advisory council members, this session will examine how two communities sought to utilize data to building coalitions and effectuate policy change.

Presenters:

Sarah Henry, Attorney, Children's Law Center

Alicia Woodsby, Senior Policy Advisory, Partnership for Strong Communities

Stacey Violante Cote, Director of Operations, Center for Children's Advocacy

E. Family-Engaged Case Planning: A Critical Component of Probation Transformation

Annie E. Casey's 2018 report, Transforming Juvenile Probation: A Vision for Getting it Right, highlighted ways in which jurisdictions can—and are—fundamentally shifting their approach to juvenile probation. The paper was grounded in on-the-ground efforts across the country to move away from a surveillance and compliance focus and toward an orientation in which the primary aim of probation is to promote young people's long-term success. This workshop focuses on one of the most important of these on-the-ground efforts—reinventing the initial stage of the probation process, case planning, to be one that places family engagement and partnership front and center.

"It was all a dream..." the unforgettable introduction to "Juicy" – a classic and gripping hip-hop song by The Notorious B.I.G. – sets the landscape for the Journey that two Oregon Youth Development Council Youth Council members will take you on. Maricela Ortega-Guzman and Bobby Tsow have unfortunately lived the life Juvenile Justice Stakeholders strive to prevent and intervene. This is their raw, unfiltered account. They – along with the Oregon Youth Development Division – will challenge you to ACT.

Presenters:

Sonji Moore, Racial and Ethnic Disparities Coordinator, Oregon Department of Education Youth Development Division
Maricela Ortega-Guzman, Grants Coordinator, Verde
Bobby Tsow, Youth Justice Coordinator, Next Up Oregon

B. Challenging Municipal Fines for Youth: Unburdening Youth and Families

In Montgomery County, Pennsylvania and jurisdictions across the country, young people under 18 face municipal fines stemming from court involvement. Although youth do not face jail time for summary offenses, municipal fines cause emotional and financial stress for youth and families, heighten racial and economic disparities in the justice systems, and increase recidivism rates. By relying on Supreme Court jurisprudence and recent legislative reforms, advocates for youth can create protections for youth facing municipal fines.

Presenters:

Michael Joseph, Economic Justice Fellow, Juvenile Law Center
Adrienne Kosinski, Assistant Public Defender, Juvenile Delinquency Unit Montgomery County Public Defender
Leslie Paik, Associate Professor, Sociology Colin Powell School for Civic and Global Leadership, City College of the City University of New York

C. Rising Tides: Working with Tribal Nations to Support Tribal Youth Success

This workshop will explore the historic background of tribal nations and juvenile justice in Indian Country. We will look at current roadblocks that American Indian and Alaska Native youth face in juvenile justice systems today, innovative tribal juvenile justice programs, and how states can partner with tribal nations to forge better outcomes for tribal youth.

Presenter:

Kelbie Kennedy, Policy Counsel, National Congress of American Indians

D. Break The Pipeline

In this workshop, attendees will learn how fighting for restorative-justice-based school discipline and advocating for special education services can promote better outcomes in juvenile defense. Additionally, participants will learn how a juvenile defense that integrates educational advocacy into a holistic approach can promote better and lasting educational outcomes that set up clients for more successful futures.

Presenters:

Stacie Nelson Colling, Juvenile Defense Coordinator, Colorado Office of the Alternate Defense Counsel
Elie Zwiebel, Juvenile Civil Rights Attorney, Elie Zwiebel, LLC & Colorado Juvenile Defender Center

E. Diversion Reimagined: Not Every Kid That Breaks the Law, Needs a Probation Officer

In Casey's publication Transforming Juvenile Probation, diversion receives as much attention as probation. Why? Nationally, diversion continues to be under-used despite research that most youth will naturally age out of problem behaviors and that formal system involvement can harm youth who might otherwise be diverted. Presenters will walk you through Casey's vision for community-led diversion and why it is necessary.

Diversion is not only under-used, but is often overly formal in practice. For hundreds of thousands of legally diverted youth, their experience has looked and felt like traditional probation. This session will explore the untapped opportunities and benefits of significantly increasing pre-adjudication diversion and shifting responsibility for diversion to community-based organizations. With clear guidelines and dedicated resources, diversion can be an opportunity to counter disparities and reduce deeper system involvement for youth of color, while helping the entire system function more effectively.

Hear the specifics of how L.A. County has put this in place, their results, their dedication to race equity, and how they have sustained this work for over 40 years.

The learning objectives for this workshop will include: 1) overview of the issue and its current status, 2) learning principles, 3) current and future practice implications, and 4) skills or tools to take away from the session.

B. Making It Count: How SOGIE Data Collection Can Transform Youth Justice

This session guides participants in a learning journey about the pathways into and out of the juvenile justice system for LGBQ/GNCT youth, particularly those of color. Participants will explore new data from our national Whole Youth Project; be guided through a research quiz that highlights opportunities for systems to improve practices; and use their expertise to develop strategies to redirect this population away from the system.

Presenters:

Aisha Canfield, Director, Ceres Policy Research

Dr. Angela Irvine, Principal Investigator, Ceres Policy Research

C. A Court System Response to Racial & Ethnic Disparities

In 2014, Kentucky experienced sweeping reforms to the Kentucky Juvenile Code which expanded access to diversion in an attempt to prevent youth from progressing deeper into the juvenile justice system and focus the most intensive resources on the most serious offenders. The results have been incredible with youth access to diversion increasing by 36% and youth detention rates dropping by 10%. Although highly successful, the reforms have made apparent the disproportionate and disparate outcomes for youth of color that have contact with Kentucky's Juvenile Justice System. Based upon these outcomes, the Kentucky court system has been intentionally focusing on RED and is seeing system improvements around disparity.

Presenters:

Rachel Bingham, Executive Officer for the Department of Family & Juvenile Services, Kentucky Administrative Office of the Courts

Pastor Edward Palmer, National Chair, Coalition for Juvenile Justice

D. Building State and Local Capacity to Reduce Racial and Ethnic Disparities: The New York State Equity and Youth Justice Policy Academy

The New York State Division of Criminal Justice Services, Office of Youth Justice and the Center for Children's Law and Policy partnered to create a new training, technical assistance, and skill-building opportunity for youth justice professionals throughout the state. It is designed to support local officials in their efforts to implement policies and reforms that target areas of significant racial and ethnic disparity in the youth justice system.

Presenters:

Trista Deame, Chief of Criminal Justice Program Planning and Development, New York State Division of Criminal Justice Services

Tiana Davis, Policy Director for Equity and Justice, Center for Children's Law and Policy

Jason Szanyi, Deputy Director, Center for Children's Law and Policy

E. Connecting Vision to Reality: One Jurisdiction's Story of Bringing Equity to Probation and in Organizational Culture

This workshop will highlight the need for probation reform and expand on the Annie E. Casey Foundation's vision for transformation. Real life examples will be shared of Opportunity-Based Probation (based on research), community connections, and partnerships with families and youth that support court-involved youth. B. Power in Partnership: Authentic Inclusion of Youth Voice in Juvenile Justice System Reform

Santa Clara County's Youth Advisory Council (YAC) is a collaborative effort, between the Santa Clara County Probation Department and the Fresh Lifelines for Youth (FLY) program, to produce positive system change through the inclusion of youth voice. Workshop participants will hear from members of the YAC and learn about Santa Clara County's efforts to engage youth voice in policy reform work, in a way that is meaningful and trauma informed.

Presenters:

Jasmine Davis, Deputy Probation Officer/Youth Advisory Council Coordinator, Santa Clara County Probation Department

Julia Cuevas, Youth Advisory Council Manager, Fresh Lifelines for Youth, INC. (FLY)

C. Resilience for Trauma-Informed Justice Professionals: Protecting Ourselves and Our Staff from Secondary Traumatic Stress and Vicarious Trauma

The call to create trauma-informed juvenile justice systems has been clearly sounded. However, less attention has been paid to the need to provide justice professionals with the tools needed to carry out trauma-informed practices in ways that protect them from the potential risks of secondary traumatic stress and vicarious trauma. This workshop will introduce participants to techniques to bolster resilience specifically in the context of working with traumatized youth in the justice system.

Presenter:

Patricia Kerig, Professor, University of Utah

D. Dreaming Big: Redefining Education, Opportunities and Access

The school-to-prison pipeline and criminal justice system labyrinth contribute to reduced student graduation rates, reduced lifetime earnings, and subsequently increased income inequality contributing to subsequent disparity gaps. In recent years Massachusetts, has implemented juvenile justice and criminal justice reform laws. Encouraged by these efforts is the renewed support for diversion programs. The Summer of Hope diversionary program coordinated high education institutions with at-risk system's involved individuals. Workshop participants will learn about the Massachusetts juvenile justice pipeline, methods of convening diversionary programs, and the outcomes from multi-organizational partnerships.

Aloha Spirit: Mindfulness: Forgiveness and Restorative Approaches to Justice

In 2014, Hawaii overhauled its juvenile justice system. At that time, Native Hawaiians were overrepresented in the justice system, along with other youth of color. Among the state's reforms was a focus on restorative justice and embracing the Aloha Spirit that had long been central to local culture.

Speakers:

JoYi Rhyss, Mindful Forgiveness Facilitator Merton Chinen, Office of Youth Services Executive Director

The Sky's the Limit: Building on the Momentum of Earlier Reforms

In 2016, Vermont became the first state in the country to include 18 and 19 year olds in their juvenile justice system. Hear from local leaders on the lessons they have learned through that process and what's next on the horizon for the state's continuing reforms.

Speakers:

Karen Vastine, Former Senior Advisor to the Commissioner, Vermont Department of Children and Families

Ken Schatz, Commissioner, Vermont Department of Children and Families

Lael E. H. Chester, Director, Emerging Adult Justice Project, Columbia University Justice Lab
