

Musical Jokes

It was April 1st, and the _____ Symphony Orchestra decided to school name

play some _____ jokes on their conductor, Maestro _____.
adjective teacher's last name

First, they replaced the conductor's baton with a/an _____ that _____ when noun past-tense verb

he/she picked it up.

When Maestro _____ indicated _____, the orchestra played _____.
same teacher's last name dynamic dynamic

When he/she cued the _____ the _____ came in.
plural brass instrument plural string instrument

And any time the orchestra had _____ in the score, they played _____ instead.
plural note value plural note value

Everyone in the orchestra laughed _____. But Maestro _____ just adverb same teacher's last name

_____ ever so _____.
past-tense verb adverb

Sound Track

I love how a/an _____ (adjective) soundtrack can make a movie seem more _____ (adjective).

Take the movie "_____ (verb ending in "ing") _____ (plural animal)" for example.

Without the _____ (adjective) music to support it, the movie would just be _____ (adjective).

When the hero, _____ (weather condition) _____ (last name of US president) runs _____ (adverb) into the _____ (noun), the music is _____ (dynamic) and _____ (tempo). This makes the entire audience _____ (verb).

And when the villain, _____ (name of breakfast cereal) _____ (last name of famous composer), steals the _____ (adjective) _____ (noun), the _____ (adjective) sound of the _____ (musical instrument) adds to the feeling of _____ (emotion).