

Grilled Cheese Snack Board

March break is here, and if you're looking for a fun way to break up the routine of kids being at home all week, a Grilled Cheese Snack Board is the perfect idea! Not only does it bring a creative twist to two beloved comfort foods, but it also makes lunchtime an exciting, interactive experience for children of all ages.

What you need:

- Bread of your choice
- Cheese of your choice
- Fruits of your choice: apple, pear, strawberries, dried apricots, and a raisin medley
- Vegetables of your choice: broccoli, celery and pickles
- Crunchy snacks: goldfish, Pringles, roasted plantain chips, popcorn chips, yogurt covered pretzels, almonds and veggie sticks
- Dips of your choice: yogurt ranch dip, ketchup and honey for dipping
- Large cutting board, tray, plate of your choice
- Small bowls for dips

What to do:

1. Assemble your grilled cheese sandwiches using bread of your choice, butter and a variety of cheeses like cheddar or mozzarella.
2. Make your grilled cheese with your method of choice and quarter your sandwiches
3. Build your board! You can set it up as a build-your-own board, where each little one can choose their favourite combinations, or let them pick and choose their own portions. The versatility and fun nature of this snack board will keep the children engaged and give them a break from the typical sandwich routine.

weewatch.com

