

THIRD GRADE LEARN AND DEVELOP RESEARCH SKILLS

Third Graders have been visiting the library weekly to learn and practice research skills. With the use of chrome books, students have been familiarizing themselves with online Encyclopedia Britannica. Students are also learning the importance of citing sources and paraphrasing. As they become more comfortable with researching skills, they will apply what they have learned when they work on their state reports later this year. Research skills are so important in the career of a student. Honing these skills early on creates learners that are interested and mindful of the text they are reading.
