The Huntington Study Group (HSG), Rocky Mountain Movement Disorders Center and the University of Colorado Denver are pleased to present a Continuing Medical Education course on the treatment of Huntington disease (HD) titled, "CME4HD: Comprehensive Care Across the Lifecycle." The course is free of charge and includes a continental breakfast, lunch and brief reception at the end of the course.

We invite all health care providers interested in the treatment of Huntington Disease (HD) to this course that will be held at the Hyatt Regency Denver Convention Center, Denver, CO, Saturday, Nov. 4, 2017 starting at 8:30 am and concluding at 3:15 pm with a reception.

Led by some of the country's leading HD experts, including Dr. Daniel Claassen, Neurologist at Vanderbilt University Medical Center, Dr. Mary Edmondson, Psychiatrist and Medical Director of HD REACH, Dr. Martha Nance, Medical Director of the Struthers Parkinson's Center, Dr. Vicki Wheelock, Director, Huntington's Disease Clinic UC Davis, and Dr. Rebecca Ferrini, Medical Director, County of San Diego, this course will be practical and educational. Participants will learn the latest diagnostic and therapeutic techniques, focusing on the care and management of patients with HD. All attendees will receive AMA CME credits. This course is held in conjunction with the annual internationally recognized forum of the Huntington Study Group, HSG 2017: Elevating HD at the Hyatt Regency Denver at the Convention Center, Nov. 2 – 4, 2017.

This is a unique opportunity for attendees to get up-to-date on the management of a difficult disease, and to connect with other physicians in the region who work with these patients and families. The course is ideal for neurologists, psychiatrists, primary care physicians, nursing home physicians, nurses, residents/fellows in neurology, psychiatry, or movement disorders—and for anyone else who works with HD families. The day concludes with an "Ask the Experts" panel, held jointly with regional HD families, with a reception to cap off an excellent learning opportunity.
