

Member Spotlight: Mill Studio Arts

We recently met with Amy Goodness of Mill Studio Arts to learn more about her business and her approach. Located in the Pepperell Mill Campus (Building 18, Suite 104), Mill Studio Arts offers a variety of arts enrichment and instructional programs for participants. A variety of art lesson opportunities are available for children from the ages of 5 to 12 in a fun and vibrant classroom studio setting. Private art lessons are also available for ages 12 - adult. Mill Studio Arts also has summer camp sessions available for families looking for enrichment opportunities for their children this summer. Also, customized adult art parties can be scheduled with Amy.

With 15 years of teaching experience, Amy's passion for art and children fuels the amazing learning environment at Mill Studio Arts. We got to sit on a class session, and her method of teaching kids excites the children to want to explore their own artistic sensibility. She first exposes them to different examples of fine art, and then has them share ideas to make connections and grow the class' appreciation for art. After the children have had time to learn and share, they get to work on a technique such as working with 3-D materials to create models and their own art pieces.

Amy encourages participants to play and experiment, allowing them to pursue their own ideas and develop hands-on competencies and confidence with the material. From the welcoming environment in the studio to celebrating the finished products, Amy establishes an inclusive and creative environment for all.
