Improving free access to family law information in Alberta

The Centre for Public Legal Education Alberta (CPLEA) is excited to launch its new website all about family law in Alberta.

We designed this site to be a go-to resource for family law in Alberta. We hope it is a safe space for Albertans and justice navigators to learn about the law, understand their legal situation and figure out what to do next.

This family law website is the culmination of two years of work, a process that involved consulting with family law stakeholders and Albertans with legal issues to understand their needs, partnering with local creative agency Sticks & Stones to develop the website, drafting plain language legal information, and user testing. The website joins CPLEA's complement of free legal information and education resources about the laws that affect Albertans.

We are grateful to the Alberta Law Foundation and the Department of Justice Canada for operational funding to make this project possible.

Next up, we are working to make the site bilingual. We are grateful to our French-language partner, L'Association des juristes d'expression française de l'Alberta (AJEFA), for their efforts and support, as well as to the Alberta Government for project funding.

Get started today at family.cplea.ca!

About CPLEA

The Centre for Public Legal Education Alberta, also known as CPLEA, is a not-for-profit, non-government organization committed to making the law understandable for Albertans. We offer free legal information and learning resources in plain language.

Our resources increase awareness and understanding of the law and empower Albertans to take action and, ultimately, gain better access to justice.

Visit www.cplea.ca to learn more about the laws that impact your life.

CPLEA is the operating name for the Legal Resource Centre of Alberta Ltd.