From Michigan to Manila: Stories from a Korean-American Woman Navigating Cultures with National, Regional, and Transnational Labor Migration Advocacy

Rev. Cathy Chang
Presbyterian Church (USA)

Objectives:

1. Identify opportunities and challenges of being an Asian-American woman who is serving in Christian mission about migration
2. Using the lens of one Asian-American woman's experiences, participants are invited to learn, unlearn, and relearn perspectives about Asian and Asian-American cultures

About the Presenter:

Rev. Cathy Chang is a Presbyterian Church (USA) mission co-worker serving in partnership with United Church of Christ in the Philippines (UCCP) Migrant Ministry at the UCCP National Office. Her family was commissioned in October 2015, and they moved to Quezon City in March 2016. She is the first Regional Facilitator for Addressing Migration and Human Trafficking. In this role, she has visited churches and organizations around the Philippines, Thailand, Indonesia, Myanmar, Sri Lanka, Nepal, United Arab Emirates, Morocco and Ecuador. She volunteers with the secretariat of Churches Witnessing with Migrants (CWWM), an international tripartite network of migrants, migrant-serving organizations, and faith communities. She is also a member of the Interfaith Network for the Rights for Migrants (INFORM) Steering Committee, a regional network encompassing Asia and the Pacific, and the Middle East. Cathy graduated from Princeton Theological Seminary with Master of Divinity, as well as Carnegie Mellon University, with Master and Bachelor degrees in Public Policy and Management.
