

My name is Felicia Tassone, and I am a casting associate producer for hit TV show Restaurant: Impossible on Food Network. We are currently casting a new spinoff show from the producers of Restaurant: Impossible and we are looking for long running multi-generational family-owned restaurants who are looking to pass on the reins to the next generation.

Given the pandemic, we know that a lot of restaurants are struggling, and we want to give them a chance to turn things around. In just two days with only $10,000 (budget provided by production), Chef Irvine takes on the challenge of revamping your restaurant back to success! After assessing the problems with the restaurant, Chef Irvine creates a plan for the new decor, oversees the refurbishment of the restaurant, reduces the size of the menu and improves the quality of the entrees, develops promotional activity, educates or resolves conflicts for the restaurant's owners, or trains the staff, as needed for each restaurant with the goal to restore it to prominence and profitability. If you are interested and your restaurant could benefit from our help, I would love to hop on the phone with you to discuss this opportunity. If you are not interested, but you know of another restaurant in your area who might be a good fit, please feel free to pass along their information as well!

Thank you for your time!
