

Every Drop Counts

Stage 4 water conservation continues at Grand Canyon.

Essential Water Uses at Home

Use only what water you need for drinking, cooking, food preparation, brushing teeth, personal hygiene, toilet flushing, necessary cleaning, and essential laundry.

Moving these activities home does not mean returning to normal water use.

Everyday Actions Matter

- Keep showers to 5 minutes or less. Turn off the water while soaping.
- Turn off the tap while brushing teeth or shaving.
- Wash only full loads of essential laundry. Delay unnecessary laundry.
- Do not wash vehicles or water outdoors.
- Report leaks and running toilets immediately.

Your conservation has helped preserve our shared supply. Please keep using water carefully at home.

Use the Supplies Provided

Keep using the buckets, wash basins, and wipes provided.

- Buckets: Collect water while it warms. Reuse collected water for toilet flushing or cleaning.
- Wash basins: Use basin to hold washing and rinsing water instead of running the tap. Save suitable used water for toilet flushing.
- Wipes: Use for simple household cleaning and personal hygiene, when appropriate, to save water.

Our Path Through to Recovery

The recovery plan combines stored water, hauled-water deliveries, and continued conservation to sustain essential needs until pumping resumes.

Water service is estimated to begin in mid November. This timing may change as the work progresses.

Park leadership will provide updates and announce any changes to water conservation measures.
