

Nathan Gusdorf

Executive Director

Nathan Gusdorf is the Executive Director of the Fiscal Policy Institute. He is a tax attorney by training, and before joining FPI worked in the tax department of an international law firm in New York City. Prior to law school, he was a Visiting Scholar in Philosophy and Political Theory at Goethe University in Frankfurt am Main, Germany and a member of the Normative Orders Research Centre. Nathan received his J.D. from New York University School of Law and his B.A. in Philosophy, magna cum laude, from Dartmouth College.

Andrew Perry

Senior Policy Analyst

Andrew Perry is a Senior Policy Analyst at the Fiscal Policy Institute. Prior to joining FPI, he was a fiscal and economic policy researcher at FPWA, the Citizens Budget Commission, and the New York City Economic Development Corporation. His past areas of focus have included economic development, income maintenance, and energy policy. Andrew holds a B.A. in International Relations from the State University of New York at Geneseo and a Master of International Affairs from Columbia University's School of Public and International Affairs.

Emily Eisner, Ph.D.

Economist

Emily Eisner is an Economist at the Fiscal Policy Institute. Emily holds a Ph.D. in Economics from University of California, Berkeley where she studied macroeconomics and public finance. Emily's economic research lives at the intersection of macroeconomics and labor economics with an emphasis on measurement of macroeconomic indicators. She has studied the role of home care in macroeconomic modeling, as well as the long-term effects of technological change on twentieth century US labor markets. Before joining FPI, Emily worked for the North Carolina Department of Commerce's Labor and Economic Analysis Division. Emily has also taught macroeconomics at Barnard College. Before getting her Ph.D., Emily worked at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York on economic research related to financial regulation, supervision, and the implementation of monetary policy. Emily also holds a B.A. in Mathematics, summa cum laude, from Dartmouth College.