Dear Parents of Red Door:

This week in our toddler class, we had so much fun learning about legs, feet, knees, toes, and the waist as part of our growing body parts vocabulary. The children were engaged in many activities to help them identify these body parts while also having a blast!

Some of the highlights for this week include:

- Songs and Rhymes: We sang fun songs like “Head, Shoulders, Knees, and Toes” to reinforce the names of body parts in an interactive way. The kids loved moving and grooving while learning!
- Movement Games: Our little ones practiced using their legs and feet in movement games, from tiptoeing around the room to stomping like dinosaurs.
- Art activities: The children also enjoyed creating hand art, where they immersed their hands in painting and thus implementing their imagination
- Books: To further support this week's theme, we read stories that highlighted body parts, especially legs, feet, and toes.

We also had some extra special events this week:

- Music Class Fun: The children had a blast in music class, dancing and playing with musical instruments. They explored rhythm and movement, tapping their feet and wiggling their toes to the beat!

As always, we encourage you to talk with your child about the fun new body parts they are learning. You could even practice naming them together while getting dressed or during playtime!

Feel free to reach out with any questions or ideas for next week.

The children in this activity followed directions through the song Red and Green Light.
