Dear Parents,

Did you hear your child saying or singing E I E I O? Well, it's because this week Red Door enjoyed a trip to Old Mac Donald's Farm! It was a festival of farm animals' songs, and sounds. Everyday, we could hear "QUACK, CLUCK, COCK-A-DOODLE-DOO, MOO, NEIGH, BAA, SQUEAK, OINK, MEOW, and WOOF". The children enjoyed playing with the farm animal puppets and toys and listening to songs as they learned about animals' names and sounds. They start to repeat the sound of the cow, the sheep (it is so funny to say baaa while sticking out the tongue!), the pig, the dog and the cat.

We read a lot of farm animals books and learned that the baby animals have a special name: the lamb is the baby sheep, the piglet is the baby pig, the kitten is the baby cat, the puppy is the baby dog, etc...

During Circle Time, we sang Old Mac Donald Has a Farm, Mary Had a Little Lamb, Bingo, When Pigs Get Up in the Morning, and Baa Baa Black Sheep.

For Art, the children painted a carton plate mixing the color white and red with a brush and they glued the nose, eyes and ears to make a pig. They also used a foam brush and white paint to stamp circles on a paper and make the body of a sheep (with the help of the teacher) and glued the head and legs of the sheep.

During small group activity, they played with puzzles with farm animal themes.

For Music class, Mrs. Clarice brought a drum and they took turn to play with it. She also read and sang a story about jungle animals.

Have a "baatiful" weekend!
