Dear Parents,

What a great week we spent learning about our "5 Senses"! The children learned they smell with their nose, hear with their ears, taste with their tongue, see with their eyes, and touch with their hands.

Throughout the week and each day, we had activities planned for each sense:

- Smelling: the children smelled only good things: their food and a lotion for hands.

- Hearing: they could hear different songs and music and they played with the musical instruments. On Tuesday, during music class, they played with the rhythm sticks. They also listened to animals' sounds and tried to guess which animal it was.

- Seeing: we played with the bubbles and watched them going up in the sky. We played "peek a boo" hiding behind a blanket.

- Touching: so many things they were allowed to touch: soft and rough objects, they looked at sensory books, touching different textures. They played with Play-Doh and painted with their hands.

- Smelling: this was the highlight and funniest moment of the week! They tasted lemon juice and their reactions were recorded, some liked it and other really not! We hope you enjoyed the video.

The children were also busy working for their moms: it involved a lot of painting and hand prints and LOVE. We hope to see all the moms next Thursday!
