

2/11/2022

Dear Parents,

I want to thank everyone for giving me the opportunity to share a piece of my home while teaching the children; my dog Porter passed by once or twice to say hello and the children seemed excited about it!

Learning kept going on :). During this week we covered skills such as reading comprehension, open syllables, characteristics of a fiction story, present tense verbs, and commas in a series; among other fun stuff!

For Math, we covered up to Lesson 5.4 and we started Lesson 5.5, the students seem to need more time with this chapter. Subtraction usually takes a little longer to do and it seems more challenging for some of the students; but, we will get there!!!

Our Science unit test will be on Monday the 14th. I send home a small science-reading book and some of their work so the children can go over things that are still a bit confusing. We reviewed the chapter for two days.

For Social Studies, we are covering Rules and Laws and our Government.

We had a great visitor for our in house field trip (I'm sorry I missed it!), I was able to hear the children (from my computer at home) being engaged with this wonderful author "Mr. Kentrell Martin." We will be reading some of his books in class.

Papa John's has a "Student of the Month Award!" There are certain criteria to follow for a student to be picked: focusing at school, keeping promises, earning good grades, helping friends in need, having a positive attitude about school, and improving. The Student of the week for the Month of January (we received the cards a bit late) is Chloe Wilson. Congratulations Chole 🥳!!!

REMINDERS...

Are you selling those Papa John's cards??? Sell, Sell, Sell 🙏 please! It will benefit us all...our class will win a pizza party and the school will get some funds for our playground! Please return the envelopes with the orders (and the monies) on Monday the 14th of February.

Also, on Monday, the students may bring Valentines to share with their peers and they can wear red, pink, white, or any of those fun Valentine colors!

Have a wonderful weekend!

Ms. Audrey

