Dear parents,

This week, we traveled to Morocco, a North African country bordering the North Atlantic Ocean and the Mediterranean Sea. It has rugged mountains, large tracts of desert, and a coastline. We talked about animals that live in different regions like camels, lions, macaques among many others. Morocco's capital city is Rabat and the largest city is Casablanca. The children also learned that they mainly speak Arabic, but also French and Spanish and they are called Moroccans. There are many beaches and deserts and is really hot!

Morocco is also famous for the great camel rides on the desert, the famed Sahara Desert.

For art, the children made the flag, the map, and drew many animals.

We had a great inside field trip from Miami Children's Museum. Two storytellers came and read four fantastic books for them.

Moroccan Proverb:

"Instruction in youth is like engraving in stone"

Have a great weekend,
