

Dr. Bonilla's Journey

Upon graduation, I was fortunate to immediately start my career working at Amgen within the Regulatory Affairs group. I was able to gain experiences in drug development without having to complete a fellowship or post-graduate training. In 2017, I transitioned into a role at Puma Biotechnology, a company focused on positively impacting breast cancer patients. I currently am an Associate Director of Regulatory Affairs at Constellation Pharmaceuticals, Inc where I work on R&D programs that aim to provide new treatment options for patients with cancer. I remain an advocate of non-traditional roles for healthcare professionals and hope others consider the opportunities available for them in the non-traditional space.
