Greater Perimeter Chamber Welcomes Todd Olesiuk as Development Director

ATLANTA, Ga. — The Greater Perimeter Chamber (GPC) is pleased to announce the addition of Todd Olesiuk as its new Development Director.

A Dunwoody resident, Olesiuk brings extensive experience in business development, strategic partnerships, fundraising, and relationship management. His professional background spans the technology, SaaS, fintech, and nonprofit sectors, where he has helped organizations grow by identifying opportunities, cultivating trusted partnerships, and delivering long-term value.

"At the Greater Perimeter Chamber, we believe strong communities are built by people who are invested in them," said Adam Forrand, President & CEO of the Greater Perimeter Chamber. "Todd's local connections, combined with his passion for building meaningful relationships, make him an outstanding addition to our team. We are excited to have him help strengthen our partnerships and support the continued growth of our business community and the Chamber"

Most recently, Olesiuk worked with businesses, nonprofits, and schools to develop innovative fundraising partnerships that generated sustainable revenue while deepening community engagement. His collaborative leadership style and consultative approach have consistently helped organizations achieve meaningful results while creating lasting relationships.

As Development Director, Olesiuk will focus on expanding strategic partnerships, supporting membership growth, strengthening relationships with investors and community stakeholders, and identifying new opportunities that advance the Chamber's mission of serving the Greater Perimeter business community.

"I am honored to join the Greater Perimeter Chamber and look forward to working alongside such a dedicated team," said Olesiuk. "As someone who has set roots in Dunwoody, I have a deep appreciation for this community and the businesses that make it thrive. I'm excited to build strong partnerships, support our members, and help create new opportunities that contribute to the continued success of the Greater Perimeter region."

The Greater Perimeter Chamber is proud to have a team that lives, works, and actively invests in the communities it serves. Olesiuk's local perspective and extensive business development experience will help further the Chamber's mission of connecting businesses, fostering economic growth, and strengthening the regional business community.

About GPC: The Greater Perimeter Chamber is the leading business organization serving the Perimeter region, connecting businesses through advocacy, strategic partnerships, professional development, and networking opportunities. Representing the vibrant communities of Brookhaven, Chamblee, Doraville, Dunwoody, and Sandy Springs, the Chamber is committed to helping businesses grow while strengthening the regional economy.
