

JCI St Paul Announces 91st President

Samantha Bossman Named President of JCI St Paul's Board of Directors

PRESS RELEASE

08/31/2016

JCI St Paul, a civic organization for young people 18-40 to become engaged in their community, today announced that Samantha Bossman was unanimously chosen as President of the JCI St Paul Board of Directors for the organizations 91st year beginning January 1, 2017. Bossman succeeds JCI St Paul's 90th President Jenna Huntly whose term ends December 2016. Bossman is currently Vice President of Individual Development.

Samantha has served on the JCI St Paul Board in the roles as VP Individual Development, 360 Committee Chair, Community Development Director, and Chair of the Signature Event Committee that is planning a Roaring 20s themed fundraiser Flappers & Fedoras this fall, tickets are still available online. She has been very engaged in building new partnerships with local organizations within the St Paul community including St Paul Parks & Recreation, Ronald McDonald House Charities, Great River Greening, Como Park Zoo & Conservatory and a number of other legacy businesses. Her dedication to giving back to the community through planning group service projects ensures she will continue JCI St Paul's mission to provide the opportunity for young individuals to develop the leadership skills, social responsibility, entrepreneurship and fellowship necessary to create positive change.

"I have always admired Samantha's organization, persistence and tenacity when working on Jaycee projects. She really gets things done, and that is what we need in a leader." -Amanda Sullivan, JCI St Paul 89th President

Samantha holds a Masters in Museum Studies from George Washington University and received her undergraduate degree in Art History from Earlham College with a minor in nonprofit management. She is currently employed as Development Officer for the Ramsey County Historical Society. Previously she worked for the National Children's Museum and Sewall-Beimont House & Museum (recently dedicated as the Belmont-Paul Women's Equality National Monument) in Washington, D.C.

About JCI St Paul

Junior Chamber International is making a difference throughout the globe by taking on the challenges in their local communities. We seek better solutions to build better communities, creating a better future. As an active civic organization for young people, ages 18-40, the JCI St Paul chapter is developing the next generation of leaders by providing opportunities to stand up and take initiative in their community. Jaycees around the state are responsible for organizing hundreds of community festivals, fundraisers for other nonprofits, and creating opportunities for community members to engage with one another.
