

SECURIAN FINANCIAL EQUITY ON ICE EDUCATION CENTER

Promoting Equity and Education

The goal of Equity on Ice is to bring together like-minded nonprofit organizations that use the ice as a way to connect with the community, whether through athletics or the arts. Four nonprofit organizations, including Brownbody, DinoMights, Friends of Saint Paul Hockey, and the Saint Paul Police Activities League are actively engaged with the program.

The Asset

In 2017, the Saint Paul Port Authority was working hand-in-hand with the Minnesota Wild to build-out TRIA Rink, the team's practice facility at 400 Wabasha Street, Saint Paul. The end result would be a hockey facility to rival any in North America. The Wild would manage the rink and schedule ice time. The Saint Paul Port Authority would be the landlord (through Capital City Properties and the Go Wild, LLC joint venture). And, because the Wild would only need the ice five percent of the time, there would be plenty available for community use.

Despite the excitement surrounding the project, it was soon apparent that wealthier teams, from across the Twin Cities, would quickly lock-in ice time for games, practices, and camps. This left limited time available for inner city youth. At this point, we knew we had to do better. But how?

The Nonprofits

We realized we couldn't do it alone, so we connected with nonprofit organizations that had expertise in both youth development and leveraging hockey or figure skating as part of their community outreach. Early on, we were introduced to DinoMights. The Minneapolis nonprofit had found a way to successfully merge hockey with tutoring and mentoring. The results were impressive. Since 1995, 86 percent of participants graduated high school, a rate significantly higher than their peers. We were convinced their success could be duplicated in Saint Paul.

From there, we were introduced to three additional organizations. First was Brownbody. Brownbody's mission is to build artistic experiences that disrupt biased narratives and prompt audiences to engage as active participants in the journey. Brownbody accomplishes this through a blend of modern dance, theater, social justice, and figure skating.

Next was the Saint Paul Police Activities League (PAL). PAL's mission is to build trust and understanding between police officers and youth. They accomplish their goal through education, athletics, and recreational activities.

Finally, we were introduced to Friends of Saint Paul Hockey. Their mission is to minimize financial barriers that keep kids from playing hockey. Thanks to their fundraising efforts, youth from Saint Paul and Ramsey County, who want to play hockey, have better access to ice time, free introductory teams, equipment exchanges, scholarships, and training opportunities that are common practice in the suburbs but rare in the city.

We found that together, these organizations had the ability to bring equity to TRIA Rink. More importantly, doing so would further their respective missions. With this in mind, we created Equity on Ice with the goal of enhancing their purchasing power at TRIA Rink while providing a home base within Treasure Island Center. Funds were raised through Capital City Properties (CCP), the not-for-profit arm of the Saint Paul Port Authority, to secure ice time and build-out the Securian Financial Equity on Ice Education Center.

The Securian Financial Equity on Ice Education Center

The Securian Financial Equity on Ice Education Center is the hub that brings the Equity on Ice concept together. Above all, it gives each organization the space they need to grow in Saint Paul. For most, this includes a dedicated office for up to two employees. For others, its access to on-site storage. The space offers a large multi-purpose room to be used for tutoring, mentoring, and board meetings. There's a smaller conference room for casual meetings and brainstorming sessions. In addition, the Securian Financial Equity on Ice Center offers easy access to TRIA Rink, which is only three floors above.

DinoMights was the first organization to move into the office with the Saint Paul Police Activities League and Friends of Saint Paul Hockey soon to follow. Brownbody will continue to be part of the Equity on Ice family by using the space for meetings, storage, and easy access to TRIA Rink. There is one office still available for a nonprofit organization that will leverage TRIA Rink as part of their community outreach efforts.

Fundraising Needs

None of this would be possible without the support of our generous donors. We have raised 80 percent of the $300,000 needed to build-out the Securian Financial Equity on Ice Education Center. And, while the build-out is complete, we continue to raise funds to close the gap.

While each nonprofit organization is responsible for their own operating costs, office space at the Securian Financial Equity on Ice Education Center is rent-free. Nonprofit organizations are only responsible for their share of utilities and cleaning costs. Capital City Properties, the not-for-profit arm of the Saint Paul Port Authority, continues to raise funds to ensure the long-term success of the program. Fundraising priorities include: technology; ice time; parking; healthy snacks; school supplies; loan payments tied to the build-out; and utilities/cleaning services (to reduce nonprofit obligations).
