Jay Wiederholt takes lead in government market

SAINT PAUL, Minn. — TKDA, an employee-owned provider of engineering, architecture, and planning services, announces Jay Wiederholt, AIA, as the government market manager for the Architecture Division.

Wiederholt will focus on serving existing TKDA clients as well as targeting new markets in the city, municipal, county, state and federal markets.

With more than 14 years of experience, Wiederholt has a strong background in public sector design excellence and project management experience. His government experience is broad-based and includes projects in the municipal, transportation and military markets.

Named as a Top 40 Under 40 award winner by Professional Builder, Wiederholt has been a member of the Passive House Alliance Board of Directors for five years. He has a passion for building resiliency and sustainable, energy-efficient design.

“We are pleased to have Jay lead this diverse and growing sector for TKDA,” said DJ Heinle, AIA, vice president of the TKDA Architectural Division. “With his depth of experience, we are well-positioned to grow this market sector and provide our clients excellent service and quality design.”
