SAVANNAH

- Savannah has something for everyone!
- Forbes Traveler named Savannah one of "America's Prettiest Towns."
- To really soak up Savannah's history, head to Calhoun Square. Since its inception in 1851, Calhoun is the only square where all of the surrounding original buildings remain.

- The statue of Oglethorpe in Chippewa Square was designed by Daniel Chester French – the same person who designed the Lincoln statue in the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C. Chippewa Square is where Forrest Gump sat to tell his story. The famous bench was made special for the movie and is now in Savannah's history museum.

- Spanish moss can be found throughout Savannah – except on the live oak trees in Johnson Square. Local legend says this is due to paranormal reasons.
- Monterey Square is home to the Mercer Williams House, which was made famous by novel turned feature film, "Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil."
- The famous "Bird Girl" statue from the cover of "Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil" is located at the Telfair Academy on Telfair Square. The Academy is the oldest public art museum in the South.
- Troup Square features a historic marker commemorating the holiday song, "Jingle Bells." The song was written at Savannah's Unitarian Church by John Pierpont Jr. in 1857.
- Explore Savannah's historical churches. You don't have to be religious to enjoy Savannah's churches. With breathtaking beauty, deep histories and plenty of photo-ops, Savannah's churches are often at the top of travelers' must-do lists. Some of Savannah's most iconic churches include the First African Baptist Church, the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist and the Congregation Mickve Israel.
