

The Chesapeake Think Tank (CTT) was founded to provide solutions to small and mid-size businesses. Having encountered the frustrations and challenges of a small business owner himself, Patrick Lee set out to create a business advisory company that really listened, understood, and catered to the unique challenges facing the small business owner. While experiencing the extreme highs and extreme lows that come with owning the full responsibility for the success or failure of a venture, Patrick began gathering tools that he knew would be powerful catalysts in moving business owners forward. Patrick takes the time to listen and assess each individual business for the unique organization that it is and then helps the owner design a strategy that truly moves the business to success.

For business owners who may feel stuck and ultimately frustrated with their ability to move their business forward no matter how hard they try, CTT provides an empathetic and supportive environment to share ideas and voice concerns. CTT advises owners in one-to-one settings or introduces them to the power of private advisory boards made up of many business owners from non-competing industries, who come together under the facilitation of CTT advisors, to help one another grow.
