

Dear Colleague,

We are delighted to announce the launch of the New Jersey Integrated Population Health Data (iPHD) Project and will be kicking off with the virtual Research Consortium on Wednesday, June 1, 2022 from 2-4 PM EDT. Please click here or on the link below to register for the event and learn more about the iPHD proposal process and research priorities. We are also pleased to share that NJ Department of Health Commissioner, Judith Persichilli, is scheduled to deliver opening remarks.

The iPHD Project is administered by Rutgers Center for State Health Policy and is currently supported by funding from the NJ Department of Health. We will begin accepting applications in July 2022 and researchers from academic institutions, private or public organizations, and government agencies are strongly encouraged to submit proposals requesting data. In addition, in this first round of applications, the iPHD will provide competitive funding to support up to four (4) pilot projects from NJ research institutions. We encourage you to visit the iPHD website to learn more about the research priorities, data available through the iPHD and application requirements.

We hope to see you on June 1 as we take the next milestone step in implementing the iPHD. We will ensure sufficient time to address questions from researchers about the proposal submission process. Deadline for registering for the virtual Consortium is May 23, 2022. Please contact Manisha Agrawal, Sr. Research Analyst at the Center for State Health Policy at magrawal@ifh.rutgers.edu with any questions about the event.

We look forward to seeing you in June!

Sincerely,

Joel C. Cantor, ScD
