

G3 Construction Group protects your health and safety every step of the way while working during the global COVID – 19 Pandemic

G3's proven Environmental Health and Safety (EH&S) practices safely support all current and upcoming projects

G3's EH&S practices that properly protect our client's and worker's health and safety include:

1. Daily temperature checks are taken and medical questionnaires administered on all workers that enter the building
2. All workers enter/exit buildings at a designated location
3. All workers wear face coverings while working within the building
4. All workers utilize hand sanitizers before entering the building and periodically throughout their work shift
5. Poly erected containments are utilized to isolate our work areas from the public/tenants
6. HEPA filtered air scrubbers are utilized around our work areas to continually scrub/clean the indoor air quality from airborne particles to include airborne viruses. Our air scrubbers utilize 99.97% efficient HEPA filters and will improve the air quality within the building while they run during our work activity.

G3's Environmental Health and Safety (EH&S) partner Hygieneering, Inc. has a team of Certified Industrial Hygienists, Certified Safety Professionals and LEED AP IAQ Microbiologists that work very closely with the G3 Construction Management team to ensure that all projects are performed in the safest manner possible through providing EH&S guidance as needed and on site EH&S inspections.

With G3's team of Construction and EH&S Professionals our Commercial, Industrial, Academic, Multi-Tenant Residential and Healthcare clients can rest assured that the work G3 performs will be done safely and will ultimately improve your building's indoor air quality environment through the use of our HEPA filtered air scrubbers that will continually operate while we work.

The Environmental Health and Safety of our clients and workers is always a number one concern especially during the COVID-19 Pandemic our world is dealing with and this concern is expertly managed by G3's team of Construction and EH&S professionals.
