Hall of Fame announces 2021 student-athlete ambassadors

THE BRUNSWICK NEWS

The Glynn County Sports Hall of Fame Board of Directors has announced their 2021 student-athlete ambassadors from Brunswick High, Glynn Academy and Frederica Academy.

Each school has eight ambassadors, with two of them — a girl and boy — from each school receiving a scholarship.

This graduating class marks the eighth consecutive group The Hall of Fame has recognized since starting the program in 2014.

Hall of Fame President Kevin Price and the board of directors work in conjunction with the three local high schools to identify senior athletes who have excelled both academically and athletically.

Since their inception in 2014, 175 student-athletes have been honored. Then in 2015, scholarships were added to the program that has awarded close to $22,000 altogether to 30 student-athletes.

Kevin Price Hall of Fame president praised the ambassadors for their accomplishments during high school.

"I encourage everyone to read over the bios for these student-athletes and pay attention to their academic and athletic achievements," Price said. "They are amazing. These kids definitely personify what it means to be a true student-athlete. They obviously take a lot of pride in their classroom work and their work on the fields and courts and have been extremely successful in both areas."

"They're great representatives of their schools and have been excellent role models for the younger athletes to follow. We wish them all the best going forward as well."

Last year COVID-19 prevented Price and The Hall of Fame from having a banquet, but they still recognized the 2020 seniors and presented their scholarships. This year the hall's board decided to do the same for similar reasons to last spring.

Price said he wanted to thank Brunswick, Glynn and Frederica for their continued support of the Ambassadors program which includes contributions the Hall has used towards scholarships the last two years.

This year's scholarship recipients are Brunswick's Kaylyn Harris and Bryce Morris, Glynn Academy's Sally Brock and T.J. Lewis and Frederica Academy's Rebekah Brooks and Eli Fritchman.

The News presents the 2021 Hall of Fame's Ambassadors Program members.

LADIES' HAIR FASHION

People have been grooming and styling their hair since ancient times. Elaborate hairstyles and fancy wigs have traditionally been worn by the elite and wealthy, while easy buns and braids have served others well for centuries.

Ancient history

Throughout history, women of status have worn their hair elaborately dressed. Slaves and the poor generally wore their hair short.

Ancient Greek noble ladies of the classical period often pulled their long hair into a low bun called a chignon. Flowers, headbands or a diadem (jeweled crown) decorated the hairdo. Henna, a natural reddish dye, was often used by the ancient Greeks, and some dusted their hair with gold.

Ancient Romans liked to dye their hair (or wigs made from slave hair) blond. Curls piled on top of the head over a wire framework were popular, and gold dust might finish a look as it had for the Greeks. They also used a calamistrum (a hollow iron tube) to curl their hair.

Historic trends

During the Middle Ages and into the Renaissance, women of all classes tended to grow their hair as long as it would grow but would often hide it under caps and scarves. Shorn hair was a form of punishment.

Wigs were popular with the European elite in the 1600s. In the 18th century, Marie Antoinette's hairstylist worked with feathers and accessories to create hairstyles up to 4 feet high.

During WWI, women around the world began to wear easier and shorter hairstyles.

In the early 1950s, women's hair was worn in a variety of styles and lengths, often curled.

The 1960s saw women embrace updos, pixies and the Afro.

Today, women wear their hair in many colors and styles.
