PASTOR NIEMEIER'S NOTE:

My dear brothers and sisters at Messiah,

As you are likely aware, Grace and I were married on September 23rd this past month. One of the readings we had at our wedding comes from Paul's letter to the Ephesians, specifically the fifth chapter. It is one of my favorite selections to preach at weddings, partly because nobody really knows what Paul is talking about in Ephesians 5:21-33 when he says that husbands and wives should "submit to one another," and it provides a great opportunity for a pastor to clear up our misunderstandings.

In Ephesians 5, Paul communicates God's high standards for husbands and wives while also communicating how much God loves us and how much the love between spouses should reflect God's love. When Paul wrote his epistle to the Ephesians, he wrote it to help them overcome the ethnic and theological divisions wracking their congregation. The Jewish and Gentile Christians of Ephesus were not walking together in love: Christians of Jewish extraction wished to have those of Gentile stock conform to Jewish practice, and the Gentile Christians argued that they did not need to do what the Jewish Christians were doing in order to be "real" Christians. This led to strife and infighting in the congregation as brothers in Christ turned on each other.

To resolve the situation and bring harmony back to the Ephesian congregation, Paul, through this epistle, seeks to demonstrate to them that in Christ's baptism there are no divisions between the Jews and Gentiles. Instead, all who are baptized into Christ are made one in Him; as part of the church, they are part of His body. Baptism, as Paul says, joins believers together into Christ's body and makes it possible for them to walk in newness of life, behaving toward one another as God would have them do, walking "in love" as Christ loves them. In addition to explaining to them how baptism unites them, Paul expanded this view of baptismal unity to more than just the fellowship of all humans in Christ. For Paul, this baptismal unity is especially manifested in the relationship between husband and wife.

According to Paul, the relationship between husband and wife is a special one because it is a representation in-small of Jesus' relationship with his church. The church is Christ's bride, won to Himself through baptism and His bloody sacrifice on the cross, and as human husbands and wives are one flesh, so is Christ one with His church. And because the church is Christ's body, He loves her, even to the point of dying for her to redeem her from her sins. In the same way, husbands are to love their wives "as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for her"—even to the point of dying for her. As the church is Christ's body, so are wives, in essence their husbands' bodies, to be loved and cherished by them as if they were their own. At the same time, wives are to "submit" to their husbands as the church does to Christ, trusting in them as the church trusts in Jesus to hold her best interests at heart in all His actions and to guide and protect her in all situations.

God has placed a tall order before husbands and wives in Ephesians 5. It is hard to love someone as much as or in the same way as Christ loves the church, nor is it easy to trust that your spouse has your welfare at heart in all things. The world may even sow doubt, causing one to think that all this talk of submission and headship somehow permits domineering in the marriage and submission in the face of egregious behavior, making such a relationship out to be a bad thing. But that is not what God has in mind for husbands and wives. Instead, both are to submit their wills to His, loving one another in a way which mirrors Christ's love. And while this is impossible for husbands and wives to do on their own, to love one another so much as to put their spouses before themselves in all things, with Christ, such things are possible. For through faith in Christ's laying down His life for the church, husbands and wives are made righteous in Him, no longer slaves to sin and selfishness. In this righteousness, they are able to better live in accordance with God's will for them, freed in Christ's redemption to love one another fully. And when they fail in the task of truly loving their spouse as Christ does His church, Jesus is there to forgive them and help them to live for the other as He does. Living in submission to Christ in His grace, husbands and wives are able to live truly as a new creation, as "one flesh."

Brothers and sisters, I hope this gives you a better idea of what Paul means in Ephesians 5, and I hope this encourages you in your own callings as husbands and wives. And for those who desire to someday be a husband or wife, I hope this helps you understand what we are called to be and do as husbands and wives in Christ.

In His grip,

Pastor Nils Niemeier

Welcome Home Reception

The congregation is joyously invited to an Open House to welcome Grace Niemeier into our Messiah family!

Sunday, October 15, 2:00-5:00PM

This very special gathering will include a short program at 2:30. No RSVP is required. Just come when you wish and stay as long or as short as you wish. Don't miss this opportunity to welcome

Grace while enjoying a snack and a piece of cake.

Questions? Contact Susan Benes (631-742-0672), Donnalee Morris (631-456-1039), Nancy Murphy (516-316-1336), or Linda Unger (631-751-8184).

Are you new to our church?
Have you been attending services but have not indicated that you want to become a member?
Have you been enjoying services online but have not returned to in-person services?

If you have not been back to church since we started having services again, we invite you to come back and join us here around the Lord's table at Messiah. Often, we heard it said during the pandemic that the church is not the building, but the people. And this is true to some extent. But church is also the place where God gives us His gifts through the word that we hear read and preached, and through the sacraments that we receive from Him, and moreover, it's the place where God's people gather. It's hard to be the Body of Christ when we are separated. So "church" is both the place and the people, and they belong to each other.

Messiah is your church, and you belong to each other.

So join us! The Lord's Table is set, the Supper is ready, your brothers and sisters are seated around it, waiting for you. Come, join us at the feast!

Please contact the church office at 631-751-1775 or speak with Pastor Niemeier if you have questions or concerns.

We look forward to seeing you in church!
