My dear brothers and sisters at Messiah,
One of the events that put an indelible stamp on my childhood growing up in Virginia was the great emergence of Brood X (Ten), the enormous periodical cicada brood that burrows up from deep in the soil once every seventeen years. The last time Brood X emerged was in 2004. This year, it is back again, but we're not likely to see much of it on Long Island (but if you see any, let me know!).

If you've never experienced a brood emergence before, it is something awe inspiring, if not a little magical. At night, the red-eyed cicada nymphs emerge from the soil after spending nearly two decades feeding on sap from tree roots. Eventually, by the billions, they crawl up the trunks of trees and into the branches, where they shed their exoskeletons and emerge as adults. There are so many that you can hear them all as they crawl through the grass up and up into the trees—one enormous rustle. Pure white when they shed their exoskeletons, they darken as their new exoskeletons harden and their wings expand by filling their wing veins with insect blood called haemolymph. The males emerge first, and when the females emerge, the males begin to sing to get their attention. And they like to sing LOUDLY (like Lutherans!), often so loudly that you cannot hear yourself speaking when you are outside. It is like standing next to a loudspeaker playing the sounds of European ambulances. The spectacle of billions of insects flying and calling is a sight to behold, unlike anything that we normally experience. It's one of the more amazing phenomena in God's creation.

I think that the cicadas' experience of emerging from their subterranean burrows to come out into the light is something of a parallel to our own experience of coming out of the lockdowns and constraints imposed by COVID-19. After a seemingly interminable time in lockdown, now that the virus' rate of infection is slowing and more medical advances have been made, it is safer to go about our daily lives. We have emerged from our own burrows. Now it is time for us to shed our skins and sing: "We're back! It's time to be humans again! It is time to be with our families and neighbors again! It is time to be with our friends at church again!"

And that is what we are doing at Messiah. New York has relaxed restrictions on churches to the point where we can now have 100% capacity for attendance. We are no longer requiring registration to attend services. We are beginning to have some more social activities at church, starting with coffee and tea under the portico beginning June 13, with a church picnic planned at Messiah for July 11. We are still taking precautions, wearing masks indoors during the service, sanitizing hands, and encouraging social distancing. But we are able to do more together now. For far too long, many of us have been kept separate from the fellowship of the church and from the sacraments. Now is the time to come back and to receive God's gifts with our brothers and sisters here at Messiah. We need one-another, and if you haven't been back, we miss you. Won't you join us?

In His grip,
Pastor Nils Niemeier
