

PARTNERING WITH PARENTS

Co-Parenting: Putting Kids First

Thursday, March 15, 2018 at 7pm

Adult Education Room/Meeting Room C

Chad Wieber, MA, TLLP

Change. Psychology Center

Join us for a presentation and discussion about your child and your family!

We will cover the following topics:

- Making shared parenting work
- The impact of separation/divorce on children
- How Co-Parenting affects family dynamics

Did you know:

- Children with successful Co-Parenting are more likely to succeed in school and positively interact with peers and teachers.
- By creating a collaborative Co-Parenting environment, children have a far better chance at being emotionally healthy and resilient.
- Children who experience their parents' negative separation are susceptible to becoming depressed, withdrawn and acting out.
- Children without a positive and well-functioning Co-Parenting team scored lower on measures of academic achievement, adjustment and wellbeing.

RSVP with the school office