

Stacey Landberg, MS, CCC-SLP, has devoted her career to supporting communication and connection between children and their caregivers. She has worked in the homes of hundreds of families across southern California and she has guest lectured across the United State to early childhood specialists and therapists since 2015. Stacey has 17 years of professional experience as a speech-language pathologist. She is a lifelong learner, a multiyear award recipient of ASHA's ACE award. Since graduating as a Leadership Excellence in Neurodevelopmental Disabilities (LEND) Fellow in 2019, Stacey's early intervention work is focused on the intersection between communication and social-emotional wellbeing for children, caregivers, and professionals. Stacey has participated in numerous Communities of Practice and formed partnerships with multiple nonprofit organizations. She is the founder and developer of Coach2Coach, a Community of Practice for early intervention professionals who are committed to supporting families through embedded coaching since 2020.

Financial Disclosures:

- Stacey own an early intervention subscription group (Coach2Coach)

Nonfinancial Disclosures:

- Stacey has a professional bias toward family guided routines based intervention (a specific, evidence-based coaching framework/model)
- Stacey is a member of ASHA
- Stacey is a member of the Infant Development Association of CA